Appellants struggle to make case

DEP throws out AUL claims, says most remaining claims based on "speculation and conjecture"

BY JAYNE W. MILLER
News Editor

WILMINGTON - Jurisdictional matters dominated discussions Tuesday morning as the parties involved in two DEP appeals over the Wilmington High School construction met to identify the issues in the adjudicatory process. On Wednesday the presiding officer issued a strongly-worded conference report along with an order to show cause and an order for more definite statement.

Timothy Jones, the Presiding Officer in the matter, dismissed all claims in the Activities Use Limitation area (the area where oil was spilled in the 1980s) by the appellants "for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted and lack of subject matter jurisdiction."

Jones further stated that "some of the remaining issues are tenuously related to the Wetlands Protection Act and the Wetlands Regulations. Moreover, after discussing the issues at the Conference they appear at present to be significantly based upon speculation and conjecture, and not fact, with respect to technical issues under the Wetlands Protection Act and the Wetlands Regulations."

Jones also advised all the parties to seriously review and consider potential problems and weaknesses in their cases. By August 17, Friday, the Petitioners are ordered to initiate good faith settlement discussions with the Town and MassDEP and must file a report on those discussions by August 24.

By August 28 the petitioners must file a written, signed statement, that "specifically, clearly and concisely sets forth the facts and claims which are grounds for the appeals, and the relief sought" as well as file written credible evidence from a "competent source" in support of their claims.

The appellants were represented by the official spokesman of the 10 Resident Group, Kevin MacDonald, joined by George Lingenfelter, and the second appellant Gerald O'Reilly. O'Reilly was represented by counsel, Jeffrey Baker, during the proceeding though the 10 Resident Group was not. Representatives from the town, including School Superintendent Joanne Benton, Town Manager Michael Caira, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Michael Newhouse, Director of Planning and Conservation Carole Hamilton, and Town Counsel Dan Deutsch, sat across from the appellants. Members of the DEP were also on hand, but were represented primarily by Heidi Zisch, Chief Regional Counsel for MassDEP/Northeast Regional Office. Representative Jim Miceli sent his Chief of Staff Margaret Wilson to the meeting.

The proceedings began at 10:30 a.m.

and continued nearly three hours with just a five-minute break. Presiding officer Tim Jones listened to and asked pointed questions not only of the appellants but town representatives as well, particular Town Counsel Deutsch and Sandra Brock, an engineer for the town.

Appellants began the discussion by stating that they are seeking clean-up of petroleum contaminated soil, with MacDonald saying "We think the project without this clean-up will do irreparable harm."

Because the project is upstream, appellants also feel that an artificial turf field will leach carcinogenic chemicals into the soil and groundwater, impacting the Ipswich River Basin. They contend that the very testing for carcinogens following the installation of the turf field means that a turf field is inherently a danger

Developing the Yentile Farm Property

Call for committee volunteers

CHRISTINE KENNEY
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - The land at 9 Cross Street, commonly known as the former Yentile Farm, could become very useful to the town of Wilmington in the future. Michael Newhouse, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, reminded the board and those in attendance at the Monday, August 13 meeting that the 20.3 acres of land could serve the town's need for athletic and recreational space.

Newhouse noted over the past several years the town has made strides toward improving recreational facilities, such as building new playgrounds and refurbishing existing fields. But he has hope that the purchase of the Yentile Farm property will be an exciting opportunity to

Curfew bylaw approved by Attorney General

Coakley indicates that consequences must differ between adults and juveniles

BY CHRISTINE KENNEY
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - Town Manager Michael Caira announced at Monday's Selectmen meeting that Attorney General Martha Coakley approved amendments made to the "Curfew in Public Parks, Playgrounds, and Fields," bylaw, which

Annual Town Meeting approved on May 5. Coakley originally only partially approved the curfew, disapproving the enforcement and penalty section because she felt the penalty of arrest if a person was to break the curfew was not in line with Massachusetts law. However, on Aug. 6, Town Clerk Sharon George received correspondence from Coakley announcing her office's approval of an amendment, which states that rather than a precautionary step inserted in the process to reassure abutters.

The Activities Use Limitation (AUL) document states that the area under the school affected by oil spills in the early to mid-1980s remains stable as it is. Appellants tried to make the case that the proposed construction of the new high school will move contamination from the spill within the AUL area to the wetlands protected area.

Jones offered a cautionary message however to appellants saying, "It seems like a number of claims fall outside my jurisdiction in this appeal. I can only address issues within the Wetlands Protection Act."

The AUL area itself lies entirely outside the wetlands protection area.

Lingenfelter tried to tie the use of an LSP overseeing work in the AUL area as cause for having the AUL fall into the wetlands protection area. However, Deutsch stated, drainage pipes from the field, as well as the baseball field, and some stormwater management from the new building.

Zisch agreed that the AUL "sets parameters to restore land to use after release. It is not a function to ensure compliance with the Wetlands Protection Act. It is not a wetlands issue."

The DEP contended, and the town agreed, that concerns with the AUL fall under Chapter 21 E, the Massachusetts Oil and Hazardous Material Release Prevention and Response Act. Jones stated that the appellants have also already filed with the appropriate authority under 21E, again subtly raising the question of jurisdiction.

Conversation moved to objections about the artificial turf field planned to replace the natural turf at Alumni Field. MacDonald raised concerns about carcinogenic contaminants in the "crumb" - the infill used in an artificial turf field made from recycled tires. Roughly a third of the field will be in the wetlands protection area, as a feeder stream to the Ipswich River basin runs less than ten feet from the field.

The appellants had a number of claims against the field beginning with a complaint that the town did not consider enough alternative locations outside of a wetlands protection area throughout the town. Deutsch responded by stating that the regulations do not require the town to consider every single available space in town and that it conducted a fully public process as it deliberated the proposed location of the artificial turf field. Further, the town contends that athletics and physical about his efforts to raise awareness of these issues throughout the process, and ultimately leading to the appeal.

"It is serious. The purity of our water is why we're here today. If the oil is going to flow, its going to be in my recharge area," said O'Reilly, further expressing his frustration that the town will not act, in his opinion, proactively to prevent contamination but rather test water multiple times after the damage is already done.

"After the bomb has been dropped we'll see if you're dead."

The appellants also raised issues of the pedway mitigation site and the location of a bank and the average annual high water mark, matters that may come up in detail at the October 25 hearing.

At the end of the meeting Deutsch pointed out that a few procedural issues and asked that all parties "be held to account going forward," and follow the schedule. Jones stated, "I do expect absolute compliance with orders going forward," referring to the late filing of the ten resident group which sent in their pre-screening conference statement the day before the meeting rather than ten days in advance as required.

"My job is to focus on the law, focus on the facts," said Jones. "To get a just resolution as expeditiously as possible."

By September 7 the Town and MassDEP may move for a summary decision and Jones intends to rule on any motions for such by September 17.

Old novel set in Revolutionary Bedford, Boston

BY LARZ F. NEILSON
Editor Emeritus

New information has been discovered relating to the minister in Bedford in 1775.

There is a tradition in Wilmington that Rev. Isaac Morrill, known as the 'fighting parson', marched to Concord with the Wilmington Minutemen.

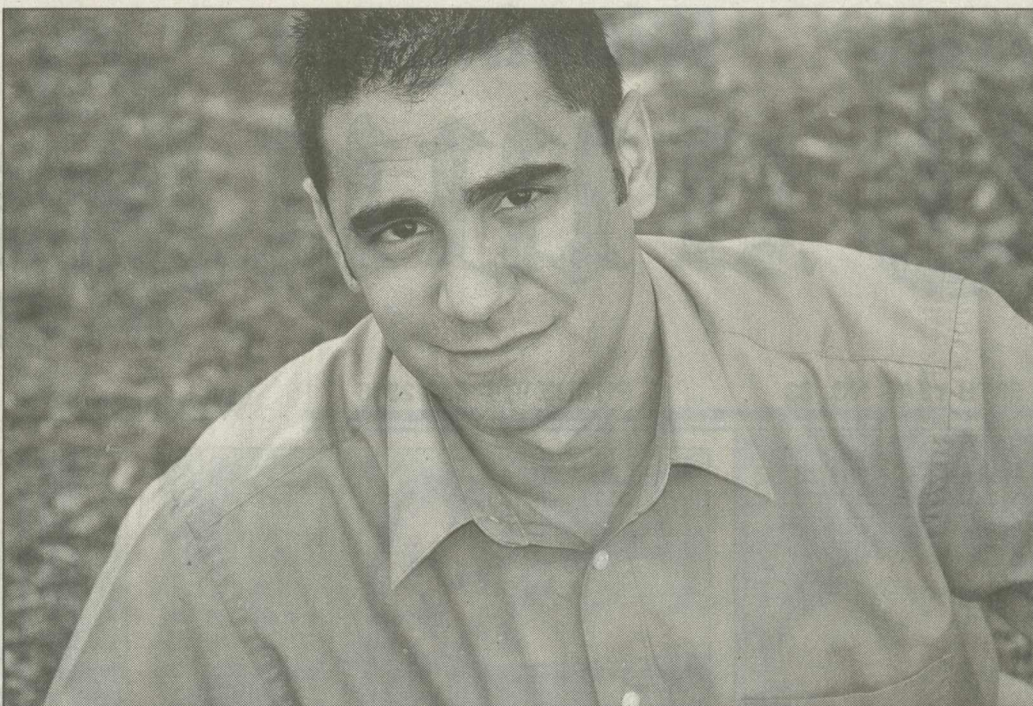

In Bedford, he and the Billerica minister are said to have invited the Bedford minister to accompany them.

The story relates that the Bedford minister told Rev. Morrill, 'You go and fight. I will stay here and pray.'

The story goes that after the battle, Rev. Morrill and the Billerica minister went back to Bedford and accompanied the minister to the British lines.

A book published in 1927 casts serious doubt on that account. "Gilman of Redford" by William Stearns Davis is based on the memoir of Col. Roger Gilman, the son of Rev. Jonathan Gilman, the minister in Bedford in 1775.

The story is presented as historical fiction, with dialogue and personal scenes which could not have been portrayed as accurate history. But, the general gist of

Former teacher to perform at Stoneham Theater

Barletta's musical mix of teaching and acting

BY JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON — Teaching is a kind of performance.

Thus, it makes sense that Chris Barletta, a former Wilmington teacher and Ipswich native, would work to juggle both.

Barletta graduated from the Boston Conservatory, where he studied music education, and started work in Wilmington in 2000.

"I taught theater; I taught chorus, and I taught public speaking," he said.

He left in 2002 after just two years, but said that there was much to enjoy in Wilmington.

"I liked the kids obviously the most. They were great," he said. "The parents were great. I love the town. My cousins lived there their whole lives, actually. So, I know the town kind of well."

Barletta however left Wilmington to pursue a dream, moving to Florida and, according to a press release issued by the Stoneham Theater, to become a member of Disney's Voices of Liberty and the Dapper Dans.

"I love choral music and harmony," Barletta said in the release. "I wanted to be a member of the Dapper Dans since I was a kid."

He's still there.

"I've been down here for eleven years, now," he said.

Since his move, Barletta has built an extensive resume. He "performed in countless professional theatrical productions, such as Fiddler on the Roof, West Side Story, and Guys and Dolls, before going back to teaching," he said in the statement.

Barletta currently works at Gateway High School in Kissimmee, Florida, teaching chorus. The school, he said, is "huge." According to the release, he helped develop the choral program, which has received high ratings in their Music Performance Assessment, and he and the students have become a family.

Balancing an acting and teaching career is tough, however.

"It's challenging. The thing about teaching is that you want" to do everything for you students, he said. "There are times I have to say no to shows because I have something going on at the school. I try my best to juggle."

Barletta said that he tries his best to do both; he won't let either of them suffer or slide.

He also conducts for the local community choir, which he said he enjoys, in part because it gives adults an opportunity to sing.

And now, he's back in New England, where he'll be performing in "Let's Hang On! A Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons Tribute Show."

The show is at the Stoneham Theatre and runs from August 23 through August 26. Tickets are $45.

Chris "The Situation" Barletta is a graduate of The Boston Conservatory with a BM in Music and Music Education. Some of his stage credits include: Fiddler on the Roof with Eddie Mekka, The Fantastiks, West Side Story, Oklahoma, The Secret Garden, My Fair Lady, Guys and Dolls, Sugar Babies, 1776, Once on this Island, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Into the Woods, Forever Plaid, and more. All in all, Chris has been seen in over 600 Equity performances nationwide. In addition, Chris is a former member of Disney's Voices of Liberty and Dapper Dans. He now lives in Orlando with his wonderfully supportive wife, their black lab, and 2 cats! Chris can be seen singing every Sunday at The Basilica of the National Shrine of Mary Queen of the Universe in Orlando, FL and teaching Chorus everyday at Gateway High School in Kissimmee!

Advertisement It's Your Money PORTABILITY AND ESTATE PLANNING

Portability, a new feature of the federal estate-tax law, permits a surviving spouse to receive the unused portion of the decedent spouse's federal estate tax exemption. That is, if the first to die leaves an estate of less than $5,120,000 - the current exemption - the surviving spouse (and only that person) can add the remainder to his or her own exemption. The executor must elect to take the portability provision within a certain time period. (The IRS is granting a retroactive extension of the filing time for the estates of those who died in early 2011.)

If a family chooses to use the portability provision, it should move soon. The current law expires at the end of this year, and the federal tax exemption falls back to $1 million.

But portability does not index for inflation. For larger estates for which the exemption is not sufficient to shelter assets, a trust for the benefit of the surviving spouse may be preferable.

Pantry needs your help

Hello Neighbors!

The summer is a that time of the year when we seem to eat most of our meals outside at summer gatherings and barbecues. Summer is also the time of the year when the donations to the Wilmington Food Pantry are at an all time low. We are in dire need of donations as we enter into the fall season. Drop off bins are located at Market Basket, Town Hall, Lucci's and The Food Pantry located on Chestnut Street. The Food Pantry is also open every Saturday from 10am to 12pm to accept donations. All non perishable items are accepted. A complete list of what is needed can be located at <http://www.commfund.org/FoodPantry.asp>

Every donation is greatly appreciated! If you are interested in coordinating a community drive at your local business, school, church or with your neighborhood, please contact us at wilmcf@verizon.net

Thank you,

Cumberland farms supports Women of Wilmington

I wanted to take a moment to thank Cumberland Farms for the wonderful fundraiser they are currently holding for the Women of Wilmington! The kick off event was a huge success and they have raised over $700 in the first week alone with three more weeks to go! We are so thankful to have such a wonderful business in town and look forward to using the funds to support our community. Our plan is to utilize the funds raised for the back to school supplies we are currently coordinating for over 50 Wilmington Children. Excess funds will be utilized for many of our other outreach programs, such as the Sponsor-A-Child program to allow children to participate in activities they may not otherwise be able to afford.

We also want to thank everyone who is frequenting the Cumberland Farms in Wilmington to support WOW. We continue to be such a strong community and we are so very thankful to be a part of it.

Sincerely,
Jomarie O'Mahony
President, Women of Wilmington

Sincere thanks from Kelly Family

We would like to extend our deepest appreciation to the Wilmington community for their kindness and generosity to us during this difficult time. Words cannot capture how grateful we are for the overwhelming support at the recent fundraiser organized by Jennifer Earles and Brenton Thorncroft. It is often said that your life can change in an instant. We had two such "instants." We never could have predicted these two life threatening incidents (within 8 days) and the resulting loss of our family business. But with the support and help of so many of you, our lives are moving forward. So many people attended the event and so many businesses contributed to the event that we could never list them all. Additionally, we would like to thank Talia Khan and her family for the fundraiser they sponsored at their 7th Wave Restaurant in Rockport. Our gratitude reaches out to each and every one of you, and it is more than you can imagine.

Sincerely,

The Kelly Family

Leave the hills alone

To the editor,
As a resident on the West side, we tried to stop the Winning Farm Development. Finally, we and the city imposed strict rules for development and they gave the city the wetland unusable. The development parcel has not been started and 4 townhouses are partially completed.

Can you imagine what that hill in North Woburn will look like if it only gets 1/2 way finished with the rock removal. You owe the taxpayers in North Woburn a responsibility to keep their homes and investment in good shape, keep areas safe, improving their environment and making the city of Woburn proud. Will this project do all that? NO. NO.

The town of Wilmington area that trucks will travel should have better regards for her neighbors in Woburn. God put hills here for a reason, so leave them alone. Sincerely yours,
Ellen Purinton

You can't get there from here

By SCOTT J. MULLOWNEY
Staff Columnist

I have often been accused of having no sense of direction. When the young woman on the mountain bike stopped me at the corner of Main Street and Peabody Road and asked for directions, I knew she was in trouble from the start.

The young woman was decked out in full cycling attire - professional helmet, spandex bicycle pants, tank top, water bottle. She looked like the last place participant in a race that already ended.

"Can you help me?" she asked. "I think I'm lost."

"Sure. Where are you headed?" I responded.

"I'm on my way to Plum Island in Newburyport," she said. "I'm following my computer print-outs from Google Maps and the directions led me here."

She had some dog-eared folded pieces of paper in her hands, computer print-outs she was following like an Egyptian archeologist looking for King Tut's tomb, which she probably could have found more easily. There's an intrinsic problem printing directions generated from a computer. The creators of these programs always leave out a key element in the directions. A missing turn here, a misnamed street there, here a left, there a left...and soon you're in the middle of Stoneham looking for Plum Island.

The woman consulted her tattered papers and named the streets she followed to get here. Some of them were vaguely familiar, but not immediately recognizable to me.

"This is Stoneham. You're heading south on Main Street towards Boston. Plum Island is northeast of here." I told her. I might not be good with directions but even I knew she was way off course. "The streets you're following are not in this town. May I see your directions?"

She was hesitant to give them up. She gripped them tightly as she held them up in front of me to read. I recognized Vinton Street, Franklin Street and Main Street, all in Melrose.

"You were supposed to take a left on Main Street in Melrose and travel north. Instead you took a left at the Stoneham end of Franklin Street and now you're traveling south," I said.

She looked at me in disbelief. "I don't understand how this happened. I followed the directions carefully. Do you know how can I get back to where I'm supposed to be?" she asked.

I gave her directions to Franklin Street and wished her good luck. I told her never to trust Google Maps because they are often inaccurate. She had a long journey ahead of her, especially in the intense heat. She half-heartedly thanked me and turned her bicycle around heading back in the direction she came from.

At least I pointed her in the right direction. I know what it's like to be lost in the days before Global Positioning System devices. When my family and I vacationed in Disneyworld, we stayed at a hotel within the Disney complex to make driving to the various theme parks that much easier. One wrong turn and I was lost on a deserted Florida highway heading to Cape Canaveral. In the dark. During Hurricane Mitch. Not fun. Ask my wife.

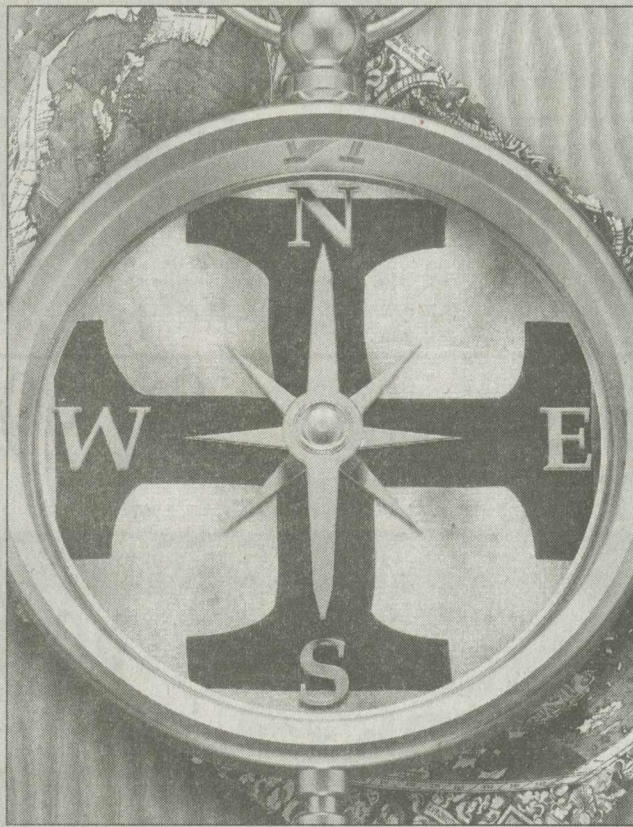

GPS devices don't always help. I left Stoneham to pick up my son at a jazz club in Cambridge. I punched in the address and followed the instructions of the mechanical voice. I ended up in a parking lot behind Stop & Shop in Somerville. There was not a lot of jazz happening there (the musical kind anyway).

I tried a GPS application on my cell phone during my last trip to the Connecticut casinos. Let's just say they haven't constructed a casino in the tiny residential cul-de-sac named Foxwood Drive but that's where the device directed me.

And I'm still trying to forget my hour-long drive from my house in Stoneham to Horn Pond in Woburn (approximately 4 miles). Apparently there is a Bermuda Triangle on the Stoneham-Woburn-Winchester border because every time I drive through there I end up disoriented.

The next time someone stops and asks me for directions, I will answer them with a polite "No speak English." It may not be politically correct but it will be better for everyone in the long run.

Town Crier Film Series

No Hope for Hope Springs

Meryl Streep has won three Oscars and been nominated an astounding seventeen times. Tommy Lee Jones made us laugh while starring in action movies such as The Fugitive, Men in Black, and No Country for Old Men. In Hope Springs, the two of them combine their forces to create a film that touches and holds together one thing- marriage. Hope Springs is about a couple that has been married for over 30 years. However, Streep is spending night after night by herself alone and Jones's lack of affection makes him useless. She finally decides to take their marriage into her own hands as they take a flight to Hope Springs and meet Dr. Feld (Steve Carell).

Even with Carell starring in Hope Springs, the romantic comedy was anything but a comedy. And in spite of all the merchandising and trailers, no one should expect it should be a date night, romantic flick. The film starts off with Streep in the bathroom putting on her makeup and hairstyle. When she enters the bedroom, her husband rejects her. There is a million different ways that you can picture this scene, but the dark, dramatic choice is the one that the director chose. In the movie It's Complicated, Streep portrays a comic character winning everyone's hearts in that romantic comedy. Hope Springs is NOT a romantic comedy. Streep carries more tears in Hope Springs than she has in almost any of her past roles.

Having a role that does not include laughter and jokes was the last thing you would expect from Steve Carell. From the first time to the last time Streep and Jones enters Carell's office, he portrays a psychiatrist and that psychiatrist tends to be serious. There are other actors I can picture in playing Carell's role, except Carell. And I must say, he does a wonderful job. Other than the end, Carell was able to make us believe that he had a PhD (even though I doubt he has one) and cares for his clients, for better or for worse.

All in all, it was a good movie, despite the drama carrying throughout the film. However, this film is NOT for everyone. First dates (or any dates for that matter) and recent divorcees may not enjoy this movie. It is not a "I feel like seeing a romantic comedy" movie because, once again, this is not one. You must be in the mood for drama.

Local Reps visit NuPath

Adams, Lyons praise social workers and support higher pay

BY JAYNE W. MILLER
News Editor

WOBURN - According to press releases from a Woburn-based human services program for people with disabilities Representatives Paul Adams and Jim Lyons both recently toured the facility. Though in Woburn, NuPath services residents of Tewksbury, Wilmington and Andover, all locations within the Representatives' districts.

Much of the discussion centered around funding for the program, which offers multiple locations for its residential, day habilitation, and employment programs for people with physical and developmental disabilities, acquired brain injury, emotional disorders, and Autism spectrum disorders. The organization is clear in its advocacy about funding for human services jobs. Recently the Governor vetoed $10 million out of a $20 million salary reserve that would have effectively raised the base pay for state social workers, a move that left many legislators in either party baffled, since program funding for people with disabilities in post-educational settings has not increased in five years. Legislators unanimously overturned the veto last month, effectively authorizing a one-to-two percent annual raise for human services workers who make less than $40,000.

Both Lyons and Adams, who visited on the 24th and 26th of July respectively, voted in favor of the salary reserve, which Sheri McCann, President and CEO of NuPath, thanked them for during their visits.

Representative Lyons brought a firsthand perspective of the care given by Human Service workers, in that his own sister (Gerry) is one of the individuals NuPath serves. Rep. Lyons told employees that he grew up in a family where his father and mother made it crystal clear that everything that they did as kids, his sister was a part of.

As to the salary reserve vote, Lyons is quoted in the statement as saying, "I'm a Republican and people look at Republicans and say that they are against everything, I don't mind telling you I am against quite a few things that this Governor spends our money on, it annoys me the amount of money that is being spent on programs with absolutely no accountability and it annoyed me that the people who are taking care of the most needy in our society, they have not been given a raise. The people who care for my sister are just the most wonderful people and what you folks do for these people, in my mind, that's what government's role is, strictly speaking, to make sure that people like my sister have an opportunity to live on their own."

Likewise Representative Adams began by stating, "These things shouldn't be just my priority, but everyone in the Legislature's priority. They are essential services and I'm happy to support them."

The statement from NuPath, Inc also relates the necessity of its care providers in the programs to work multiple jobs, with most working two or three jobs to support themselves on the low income afforded to social workers.

Ms. McCann stated, "We do new staff orientation about every 5 or 6 weeks, and each time I ask if anyone has 2 jobs and a few hands go up, then I ask does anyone work 3 jobs and the rest of the hands go up. They cannot continue to survive on the salary of this one job."

Ms. McCann said, "People come to me and say, 'why can't you pay us more?' The answer is we have not received a cost of living increase since 1989. Let me repeat that, 1989! This means that for "Michael" back in 1989, we received $6,000 per year in the program to support him, and in 2012 we are still getting $6,000. In that timeframe, aside from the cost of living going up on everything, Michael has aged and now has more medical issues and requires more care and costs more. As new people come into the program, they do get a better rate, but all the individuals who have been in the program for years, are still at their original rate, without any cost of living increases."

LIVING

Tips To Solve Dorm Room Dilemmas

(StatePoint) From tiny closets to rude roommates, dormitory living can have its pitfalls. But students can get a handle on some dorm room dilemmas even before setting foot on campus this fall.

These great tips will help make the dorm room or off-campus apartment experience more comfortable:

SHOPPING PREP

Avoid purchasing items the school provides or prohibits. Find your school's do's and don'ts at www.bedbathandbeyond.com/shopforcollege, by selecting "Find My College."

Use free tools like a checklist or online registry to coordinate with future roommates on styles, colors and who will be bringing what items for community use.

Opt for retailers that have college students in mind this time of year and are offering special services. For example, Bed Bath & Beyond's free service, "Shop Here, Pick up There," lets students shop for dorm room essentials at a store near home and pick up everything at a store near campus. Use their college checklist and take advantage of in-store experts to stay organized and within budget.

"Using smart resources for college-bound students can make a potentially challenging living situation more comfortable," says Jessica Joyce, a spokesperson for the retailer.

MAXIMIZE SPACE

Space is limited in the dorms. Create space under the bed, over the door and in the closet. Bed risers, storage cubes and rolling drawer carts are simple ways to cram all that stuff in small spaces.

Double hanging rods and ultra slim hangers with accessory bars, like Real Simple's Slimline Hangers, can maximize closets.

SHOWER & PRIMP

Due to lines in the community bathroom, students should never save showering until the last minute. Use a shower caddy to easily transport toiletries down the hall. Remember, this isn't a private spa, bring a bathrobe and flip flops for trips to the shower.

Girls should bring essential hair styling tools like the Conair Infiniti Pro Hair Dryer and You Wave Ultra Waver. Guys should bring their own shavers like the Philips Norelco Style Shaver to look fresh for class.

BED GUIDE 101

A great night's sleep is crucial to a young scholar. Night owls and morning larks alike will find a friend in ear plugs and sleep masks to shut out light and sound from roommates.

Upgrade a drab room and the school-issued bed by layering on a stylish comforter set and add support to a standard six-inch mattress with a memory foam topper or featherbed.

Mattresses are reused year in and year out. Guard the mattress against the scary past with a lab-tested bed bug and odor fighting tool like the Allergy Luxe Bed Bug Mattress Protector.

YOUR TECHNOLOGY

Remember, outlets are limited in most dorm rooms, so consider streamlining with multi-purpose gadgets. The iHome Clock Radio for example lets you listen to iPods, iPhones, or the radio, set an alarm for class, or charge devices.

Multiply outlet access with an adjustable surge protector that reaches around furniture and corners, such as the Quirky Pivot Power Surge Protector.

Check out www.bedbathandbeyond.com/shopforcollege for more tips on solving dorm room woes.

Fionda to meet voters at True North Cafe in Burlington

BURLINGTON - The Fionda Committee announced last week that Dave Fionda will be meeting with voters at the True North Café located at 204 Cambridge St. in Burlington on Saturday August 18, 2012, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

"I am looking forward to having coffee with the voters of our district," said Fionda. "Small businesses like the True North Café drive our economy and will be essential in getting people back to work."

Dave is a Democrat running a write-in campaign to replace Representative Charley Murphy, who recently announced his retirement from the legislature. Murphy has endorsed Dave as his successor. Murphy recently endorsed Fionda in his bid to represent Burlington, Bedford, and Wilmington.

"I am running because I passionately believe that it's time for Beacon Hill to Put People First."

Dave will bring his lifelong dedication to helping others to Beacon Hill. In addition to having been an elected Town Meeting member for two terms, he has been appointed to several town boards, including the Land Use Committee, and the Informational Services Advisory Committee. Dave is also a Rotarian, single parent, coach, successful small business owner and entrepreneur.

Since Charley's announcement was beyond the June 1st date for candidate withdrawals, he will remain the only candidate on the ballot for the September 6th primary.

Should Representative Murphy "win" the September 6 primary, the Democratic Town Committees of the three towns in the District, Bedford, Burlington and Wilmington, will meet and caucus. They will then decide who will be the Democratic nominee in the November 6 general election.

Community Pride

I want to give a huge thumbs up to the Town of Tewksbury for the support they gave this summer to the 11U Nationals, who won both District and Sectional tournaments, and made it as far as the state semifinal championships.

The boys played games in North Andover, Billerica, three games in Gloucester and the semifinal in Medford. Every single time, Tewksbury people would come to watch. There were family, friends, neighbors, other teammates, previous coaches, teachers that came out in full force. It was amazing to see the 100+ people that drove down to Medford to cheer on my son and the rest of the District 4 champs. I thank all of you that supported those boys, it meant so much to the entire 11U National Family (players, parents, and coaches).

I've witnessed this community come together so many times. When an illness hits, a tragedy occurs, celebration is necessary, or support is needed....there's no place like Tewksbury."

Sheriff Koutoujian, Finegold announce funding for lockup

MEDFORD - Middlesex Sheriff Peter J. Koutoujian, together with Middlesex police chiefs and Legislative leaders, announced Tuesday that a proposed regional lockup serving communities across Middlesex County has moved one step closer to becoming reality.

After Sheriff Koutoujian, local officials and police chiefs secured House and Senate backing for the project in the final weeks of the Legislative session, the Executive Office of Administration and Finance committed to funding the $1.5 million estimated project cost using capital expenditures.

"Securing funding for the regional holding facility was a team effort that included every police chief in Middlesex County," said Sheriff Koutoujian. "A regional lockup will help save local departments money and allow them to take officers off prisoner watch and put them back on community watch."

"In these times of tight municipal budgets, sharing a regional lockup for Middlesex County will be a big help to our local police departments in Tewksbury and Dracut," said State Senator Barry Finegold (D-Andover). "If we can save money while keeping our neighborhoods safer, that's a win-win situation."

Currently, in order for police departments to monitor and protect detainees in their custody, they are required to use limited staff resources that would otherwise be assigned in the field. Under a regional lock-up proposal endorsed by the Middlesex Chiefs of Police, the Middlesex Sheriff's Office would hold detainees in a safe and secure location at the Billerica House of Correction.

By removing the need for police departments to have a police officer posted at a holding facility, this lock-up proposal would constitute a better, more efficient use of manpower, while saving resources and protecting public safety.

The Donut Shop comes to town

Breakfast just got tastier

By JON BISHOP
Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON—Shawn Mustapha wanted to try something different.

"I owned a private security and investigation firm for 13 years," he said. "I sold my security contracts back in January of 2012."

So he decided to go into the breakfast business. He scouted a location in Wilmington, and discovered the former Dunkin' Donuts in North Wilmington. And it had something he specifically wanted: a drive-through.

"So, here I am," he said.

While he still works as a private detective, he said that he has come to enjoy the doughnut business.

"So far, it's good. Business is really good," he said.

"And he's attracted some regulars."

"I'm meeting some really nice people in Wilmington,"

he said.

This, in fact, is his favorite part of the business. He likes seeing people come in, order. He enjoys interacting with them.

He said that he's not worried about competing with Dunkin' Donuts, which dominates the Wilmington market.

"Dunkin' Donuts is Dunkin' Donuts. They are who they are," he said. "What I'm going to do is supply my customers with a hand-cut doughnut, fresh daily, and a really good product with New England coffee."

And this is one of the highlights. New England Coffee, he said, is freshly-brewed; they don't utilize syrups. It also comes in ten different flavors. Along with coffee, they offer the Nor'easter frozen drink, which comes in five flavors. He said that they have been "very popular with the hot weather."

They also aim to offer fresh food.

"Our specialty is our fresh egg sandwiches. We use fresh eggs—we crack the eggs—and it just makes a great breakfast sandwich," he said.

Thus, customers, too, are pleased: he said that people have told him that his restaurant has added some variety to Wilmington's coffee and doughnut options.

And now, he said that he's looking to expand.

"I have a couple locations right now that we're negotiating," he said, which are in Methuen and Middleton.

Ultimately, though, he said that he's glad that he found the location in Wilmington. The town is perfect.

"It's a great location. Wilmington's a great community," he said. "I think we fit right in here."

OBITUARIES

Beverly A. (Barry) Snow

One of the first female members of the Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge of Elks WILMINGTON - Beverly A. (Barry) Snow, age 73, of Wilmington, formerly of Tewksbury, died peacefully on August 10, 2012, following a lengthy illness.

Beverly was born in Malden, MA, on March 1, 1939, she was the cherished daughter of the late Leonard and Catherine (Dwyer) Barry. She was raised in Medford, attended Girl's Catholic Schools, and graduated from Medford High School with the Class of 1957.

Beverly married "the love of her life" Richard Snow on May 9, 1964, the couple lived in Cambridge for a few years before moving to Tewksbury, where they resided for over 24 years. Beverly and Richard shared over 47 years of marriage, they were inseparable, the couple raised a beautiful daughter, enjoyed being grandparents, wintered in Florida, and traveled all over before Richard's sudden death in December of 2011. Everyone who knew Beverly, knew she missed Richard terribly.

Before her health declined, Beverly was a very active communicant of St. William's Parish for many years and she was one of the first female members of the Tewksbury Wilmington Lodge of Elks B.P.O.E. 2070 in Tewksbury.

Beverly and Richard moved to Wilmington 24 years ago, settling in a great neighborhood where they met countless friends over the years and enjoyed the many neighborhood celebrations and block parties.

In her spare time, Beverly loved to shop at the local malls and had a talent for arts and crafts.

Beverly will be fondly remembered as a loving wife, devoted mother and grandmother, and a good friend; she will be greatly missed by all who loved her.

Beverly was the beloved wife of 47 years to the late Richard L. Snow, devoted mother of Linda A. Tewksbury Police launch intensive crackdown on impaired driving

Remember: Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over

Tewksbury - Tewksbury Police Department today announced it will join 128 other law enforcement agencies statewide in support of an intensive crackdown on impaired driving from August 15 to September 3 as part of the national Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over mobilization, funded by a federal grant administered through the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security's Highway Safety Division (EOPSS-HSD).

Impaired driving is one of America's most often committed and deadliest crimes. In 2010, 115 people died in impaired driving related crashes in the Commonwealth. Moreover, there were an additional 2,750 impaired driving related personal injury and property damage crashes and almost 14,635 impaired driving arrests.

On average, there is one alcohol impaired driving-related fatality every 51 minutes across America.

The number of drivers operating under the influence increases during holiday weekends, especially during summer holidays.

Too often, innocent, law-abiding people suffer tragic consequences and the loss of loved ones due to this careless disregard for human life. Because we're committed to roadway safety, we are intensifying enforcement during the crackdown. Since twice as many alcohol-impaired crashes occur over the weekend and four times as many occur at night, we will be especially vigilant during these high-risk times when impaired drivers are most likely to be on our roads.

Tewksbury Police Department's officers will be aggressively looking for all impaired drivers during the crackdown and will arrest anyone they find driving while impaired - regardless of age, vehicle type, or time of day. The Officers of this Department are responsible for over seventy (70) operating under the influence arrests so far this year.

Our message is simple and unwavering: if we find you driving impaired, we will arrest you. No exceptions. Even if you beat the odds and manage to walk away from an impaired-driving crash alive, the trauma and financial costs of a crash or an arrest for driving while impaired can still destroy your life.

According to the Registry of Motor Vehicles, violators often face jail time, loss of their driver licenses, or being sentenced to use ignition interlocks. Their insurance rates go up. Other financial hits include attorney fees, court costs, lost time at work, and the potential loss of job or job prospects. All told, a first offense can easily cost well over $5000. Driving impaired is simply not worth all the consequences. Remember, Drive Sober or Get Pulled Over.

After one of her four sisters successfully underwent gastric bypass surgery in 2010, 51-year-old Donna finally realized that it was time to deal with her own weight issues. She had high cholesterol, high blood pressure that even two medications couldn't control, and she was borderline diabetic.

Donna underwent a relatively new weight-loss surgery called gastric sleeve gastrectomy in July 2011. Since the procedure, she has lost 90 pounds, with 40 more to go to achieve her goal weight. She's lost six sizes, her cholesterol, blood sugar and blood pressure are completely normal, and she walks for 40 minutes, four days a week.

"I'll walk by a window, catch my reflection, and stop and ask, 'Who is that person?'" Donna says. "I remember her, but she'd been gone for so long. It's not just about losing weight; it's about gaining back my life."

Mass firm recalls soup products that may contain plastic fragments

All products sold at Wegmans

WASHINGTON, August 15, 2012 - Blount Fine Foods, a Fall River, Mass. establishment, is recalling approximately 4,100 pounds of meat and poultry soup products that may contain fragments of plastic, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) announced today.

The following products are subject to recall:

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans Food Markets Chicken and Dumpling Soup," with a "use by" date of August 24, 2012 and "Keep Refrigerated" on the label.

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans Food Markets Italian Wedding Style Soup with Meatballs," with a "use by" date of September 3, 2012 and "Keep Refrigerated" on the label.

The cases can be identified by establishment number "EST. 19449A" or "P-19449A" inside the USDA mark of inspection. The soup products were packaged on June 5, 2012 and sent to distribution centers in Pennsylvania and New York. From there, the products were sent to retail establishments in Massachusetts, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

In addition to the FSIS regulated products, the firm is also recalling the following products, packaged on June 4, 2012, which are regulated by the Food and Drug Administration:

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans Food Markets Gazpacho Soup," with a "use by" date of September 2, 2012

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans Food Markets Tomato Basil with Orzo Soup," with a "use by" date of September 3, 2012

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans

Food Markets Caribbean Black Bean Soup," with a "use by" date of September 3, 2012

16 oz. cups of "Wegmans Food Markets Lobster Bisque," with a "use by" date of September 3, 2012

The problem was discovered after consumers complained to the firm about finding plastic fragments in various Wegmans brand soup products. The problem likely occurred during the production of the soup containers. FSIS and the company have not received reports of injury due to consumption of this product. Anyone concerned about an injury should contact a healthcare provider.

FSIS routinely conducts recall effectiveness checks to verify recalling firms notify their customers of the recall and that steps are taken to make certain that the product is no longer available to consumers.

Consumers and news reporters with questions about the recall should contact Timothy Burns, Director of Quality Assurance for Blount Fine Foods, at (800) 274-2526.

Consumers with food safety questions can "Ask Karen," the FSIS virtual representative available 24 hours a day at AskKaren.gov or via smartphone at m.askkaren.gov. "Ask Karen" live chat services are available Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. ET. The toll-free USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline 1-888-MPHotline (1-888-674-6854) is available in English and Spanish and can be reached from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (Eastern Time) Monday through Friday. Recorded food safety messages are available 24 hours a day.

Double the fun

Brother and sister looking for new family

WILMINGTON - Two is better than one. That's what OC and Meg think. This brother-sister duo have been together for seven years young, living with their elderly owners since they were kittens, but now must find a new home.

Their first foster mom said "I found their personalities to be quite sweet. They are quiet, well mannered and both adapted to their new surroundings quickly. Both are playful and love to be brushed."

Meg is snowy white and OC is mostly white with brown on his tail and face. Unique markings set him apart from his sister, but that is about all that makes these lovely siblings different because they have identical friendly, calm, but playful personalities — an easy duo to love.

Both cats love to be petted. Not known to be loud, this pair certainly can purr. They make friends with people easily and they definitely enjoy keeping your lap warm.

Litter box manners are excellent and there are no concerns with health. They both have had good regular vet care their whole lives, which makes for a healthy future. If you are looking for a pair of super good looking, well behaved, loving, fun cats, you have found your match. There's no double trouble here... just double the fun.

For an adoption application or to see our other adoptable kittens & cats, visit www.lolcr.org or email us @ LOL_CR@hotmail.com; or call 781-850-6684. Much needed donations are tax-deductible and can be made online, or mail Lots Of Love Cat Rescue, P.O. Box 396, Wilmington, MA, 01887

Shop smart – spend less on back-to-school supplies this school year

MARLBOROUGH - School bells will be ringing before we know it. Now's the time to take advantage of annual back-to-school specials on supplies. Whether you plan to shop at your favorite retail store or in the drawers and closets of your home, Better Business Bureau recommends sticking to a budget to avoid the common overspending on school supplies.

According to the National Retail Federation, parents will be shopping carefully and making special efforts to save on supplies this school year. 31% of families say they will do comparative shopping online (compared to 29.8% last year), and they will use more coupons (38.7% vs. 36.9%), and cut back on extracurricular activities or sports (14.3% vs. 10.2%).

Many retailers offer back-to-school "freebies" to entice shoppers. Coupons, deals, and giveaways are always nice, but make sure you actually need the items first. There's no need to spend money on new crayons, colored pencils, and notebooks if all it takes is a good sharpening or tearing out a few used pages from the previous year.

BBB recommends considering the following when it comes to back-to-school shopping:

- Take inventory. There's always that endless supply of makers, crayons and notebooks around the house. Reusing these items can save hundreds of dollars over the years. Consider repackaging, sharpening, and cleaning out older, gently used items before buying new ones.

- Look for the deals. Some retailers' back-to-school specials are available for online and in-store purchase. Make sure to check out your local newspaper for deals. Oftentimes, retailers will put ads showcasing the special buy-one-get-one-free deals, and even coupled items like lunchboxes with backpacks to lure in customers. Shop sooner rather than later and save more.

- Set a budget. Decide how much you are willing to spend per child, and include your children for a "teachable moment" on creating a budget. After taking inventory, create a shopping list and stick to it. This will help you avoid costly impulse purchases and ensure nothing is forgotten.

- Shop during tax free holidays. Many states have tax-free days in August, which can mean significant savings. Be mindful of restrictions, either a dollar amount or on the type of item purchased. Most tax holidays include clothing and school supplies; some include computers and sports equipment, too.

- Know what your child's school allows. Schools will often provide parents with a list of required items for the school year, which can help determine what you need to purchase. These lists are also available at many retail stores and on school websites. Additionally, many schools have specific dress codes, so keep these restrictions in mind before spending money on clothes the school may not allow.

- Check for refund and exchange policies. Be sure you can exchange or return items purchased during this time period. Keep in mind some items may be non-refundable or have restocking fees associated with a return.

Condell Graduates from Missouri S&T

ROLLA, MO - Mike Condell of Wilmington graduated from Missouri University of Science and Technology during commencement ceremonies held Friday, May 4, and Saturday, May 5, in the Gale Bullman Multi-Purpose Building on campus. Condell earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering.

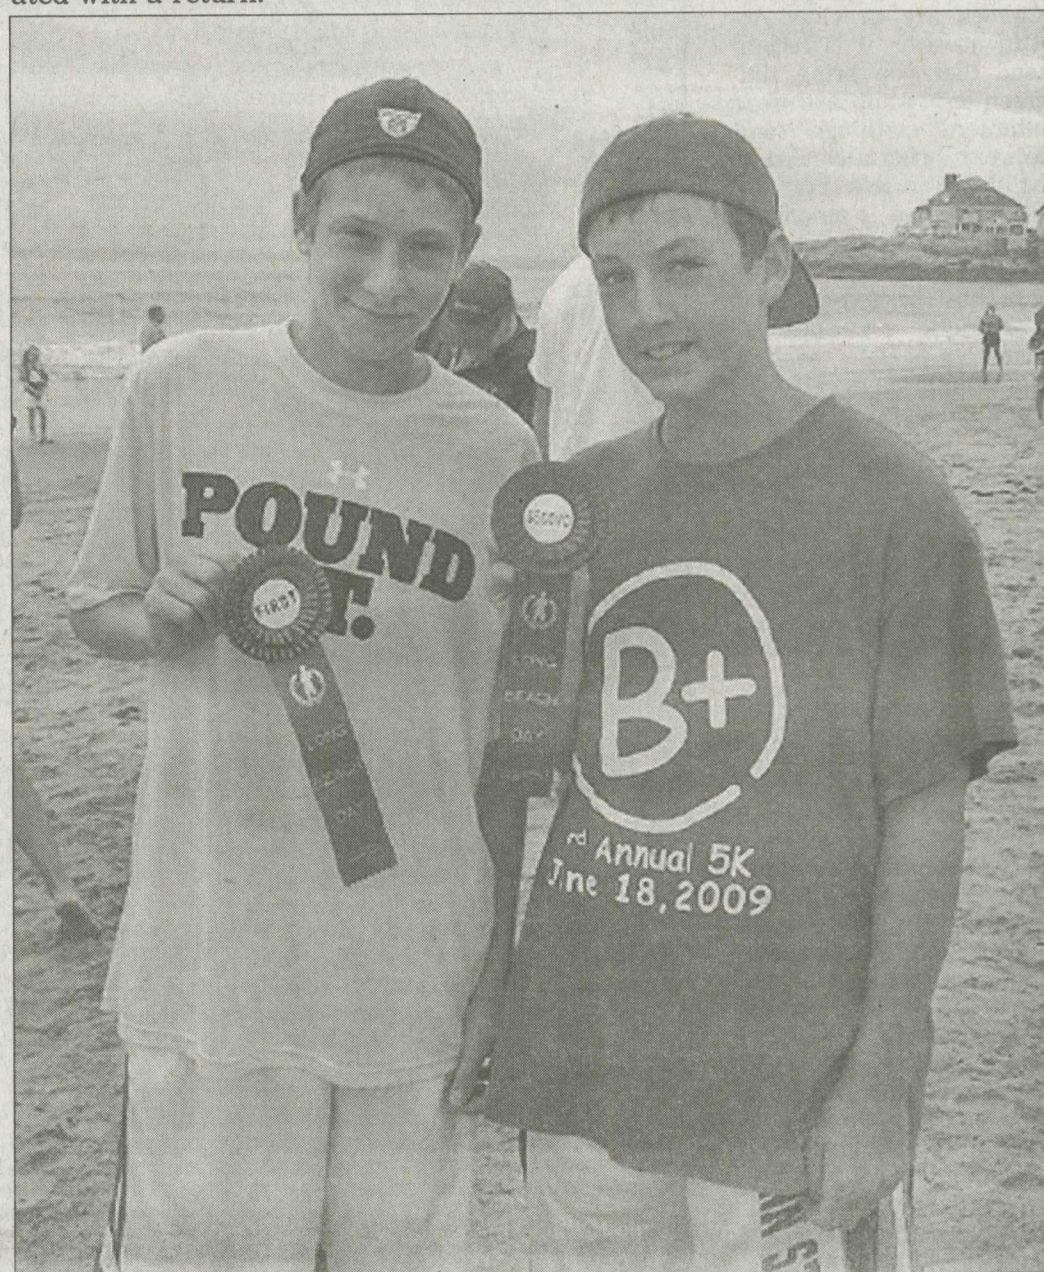

More than 770 candidates received degrees during the ceremonies. The university awards bachelor of science, bachelor of arts, master of science and doctor of philosophy (Ph.D.) degrees.

Missouri S&T has traditionally recognized graduates earning a bachelor's degree with honors by placing the designation summa cum laude, magna cum laude or cum laude on their diplomas. The highest honor, summa cum laude, is awarded to students who have earned a cumulative grade point (GPA) of 3.8 or above on a 4.0 scale for all courses counting toward the degree. Magna cum laude is the designation for a GPA of 3.5 to 3.79, and cum laude indicates a GPA of 3.2 to 3.49.

Missouri S&T is one of four campuses in the University of Missouri System and one of the nation's top technological research universities.

a person who breaks the curfew could be subjected to either a $100 fine, imprisonment of not more than thirty days, or by both a fine and imprisonment.

Coakley also noted, "In addition, the town should be especially careful in selecting enforcement procedures for juveniles who may violate the town's curfew bylaw in light of the fact that Section 52.3 contains separate enforcement provisions for juveniles and their parents."

According to the bylaw, juveniles who violate the curfew will first be given a warning and then escorted to the police department for parental notification. Coakley pointed out that one section of the bylaw suggests that parents cannot permit a juvenile to be in violation of the curfew, but a parent cannot be criminally prosecuted for trespassing. She requested town officials consult with town counsel about the appropriate enforcement mechanisms for such instances.

Massachusetts Law Enforcement Challenge
Wilmington Police Department will receive an Award of Excellence in the Gold category in the Massachusetts Law Enforcement Challenge (MLEC) on Aug. 24. The challenge, a joint effort from the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association, Executive Office of Public Safety, and Security's Highway division, is designed to recognize departments that are committed to reducing injuries and deaths on roadways through traffic enforcement and education. The selectmen have invited Police Chief Michael Begonis to a future meeting to congratulate him on his department's success.

Voter Registration Time Change

Caira informed those at the meeting that the deadline to register to vote for the State Primary election was changed from 8 pm to 5 pm on Friday, Aug. 17 under the authority of William Francis Galvin, secretary of the Commonwealth.

Road Safety Reminder

At the conclusion of the meeting, Selectman Champoux asked that residents be mindful that school starts up again soon, meaning students will be at risk on street sides waiting for the bus and walking to school. He requested drivers be especially careful when navigating the roads to avoid injuries.

dent, is completing his eighth consecutive term in the House. He represents the 21st Middlesex District, which is comprised of Burlington, Bedford, and Precinct 3 in Wilmington.

After having filed papers to seek another term, Murphy announced his plans to resign. The decision came after the deadline to withdraw so his name remains on the ballot.

Murphy is the only name listed on any ballot for the Sept. 6 primary. According to a press release, he has endorsed David Fionda in the election for the seat.

Burlington residents David Fionda, endorsed by Murphy, and Virginia Mooney have announced write-in campaigns for the Democratic primary. Walter Zenkin of Burlington is running a write-in campaign in the Republican primary.

expand the athletic space beyond what is currently available.

"The acquisition of the Yentile Farm property...provides the town with a unique opportunity to build a more comprehensive play area to serve Wilmington families," Newhouse read from a memorandum he distributed to the selectmen.

The purchase of the land was approved by Annual Town Meeting on May 5, and it was officially acquired for nearly $1.2 million on June 6. Newhouse recommended a committee be formed to begin working on a plan for how the land would best be utilized.

"The committee will be responsible for engaging the public, including recreation and athletic organizations, to help define the scope of the project. The committee will be asked to develop a number of alternative plans for the use of the property including the preparation of cost estimates associated with each option," Newhouse said.

Newhouse added the committee will also be expected to provide timelines for the completion of potential projects and possible funding options for each.

He recommends the committee consist of the following members:

- One member appointed by each selectman
- One member appointed by the town manager
- The town manager or his designee
- The recreation director or her designee
- The planning and conservation director or her

designee

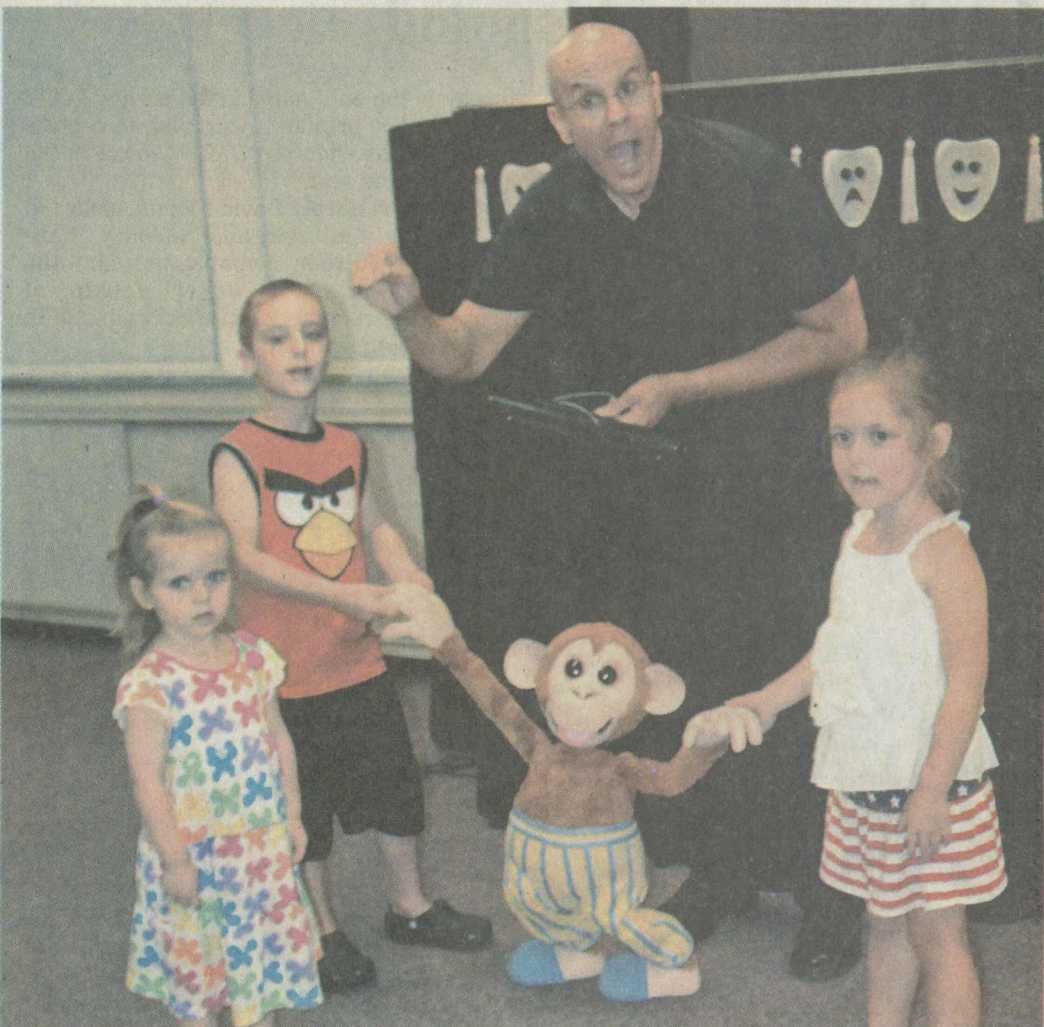

•The health director or her designee

•One member of the Board of Selectmen as designated by the chairman

Selectman Michael Champoux asked how the chairman would designate a board representative. Newhouse noted he has already spoken with Selectman Judith O'Connell who, based on her experience in youth athletics, Newhouse has deemed the most qualified for the seat.

The board hopes to make all appointments to the committee by the Sept. 10 meeting. Residents who are interested in sitting on the committee are asked to contact Michael Cairra, Town Manager, via email.

"Let's see where this committee takes us," Newhouse town hall and Cunningham Street. An initial search of that area proved to be inconclusive, and the search continued.

A Wilmington woman with eagle eyes who had read the missing person report spotted Kenny near the Walgreens in Tewksbury on Route 38. Thinking fast, she called the Wilmington police, who quickly came to return the missing teen to his family and caretakers. Wilmington police, who confirmed both Anglemyer's disappearance and discovery, indicated that this had not been Kenny's first time leaving the group home, but that the stretch from August 3rd to August 9th was his longest absence since his enrollment.

The group home, Milestone, which is a part of a larger group of facilities geared toward helping young people called Team Coordinating Agency that is based out of Haverhill, had no comments to make on Anglemyer's flight or finding. Wilmington police indicated that the Milestone group home is not a closed campus, so Anglemyer's departure was more walking out than breaking out.

Manny Now Being Manny at Texas Southern University

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

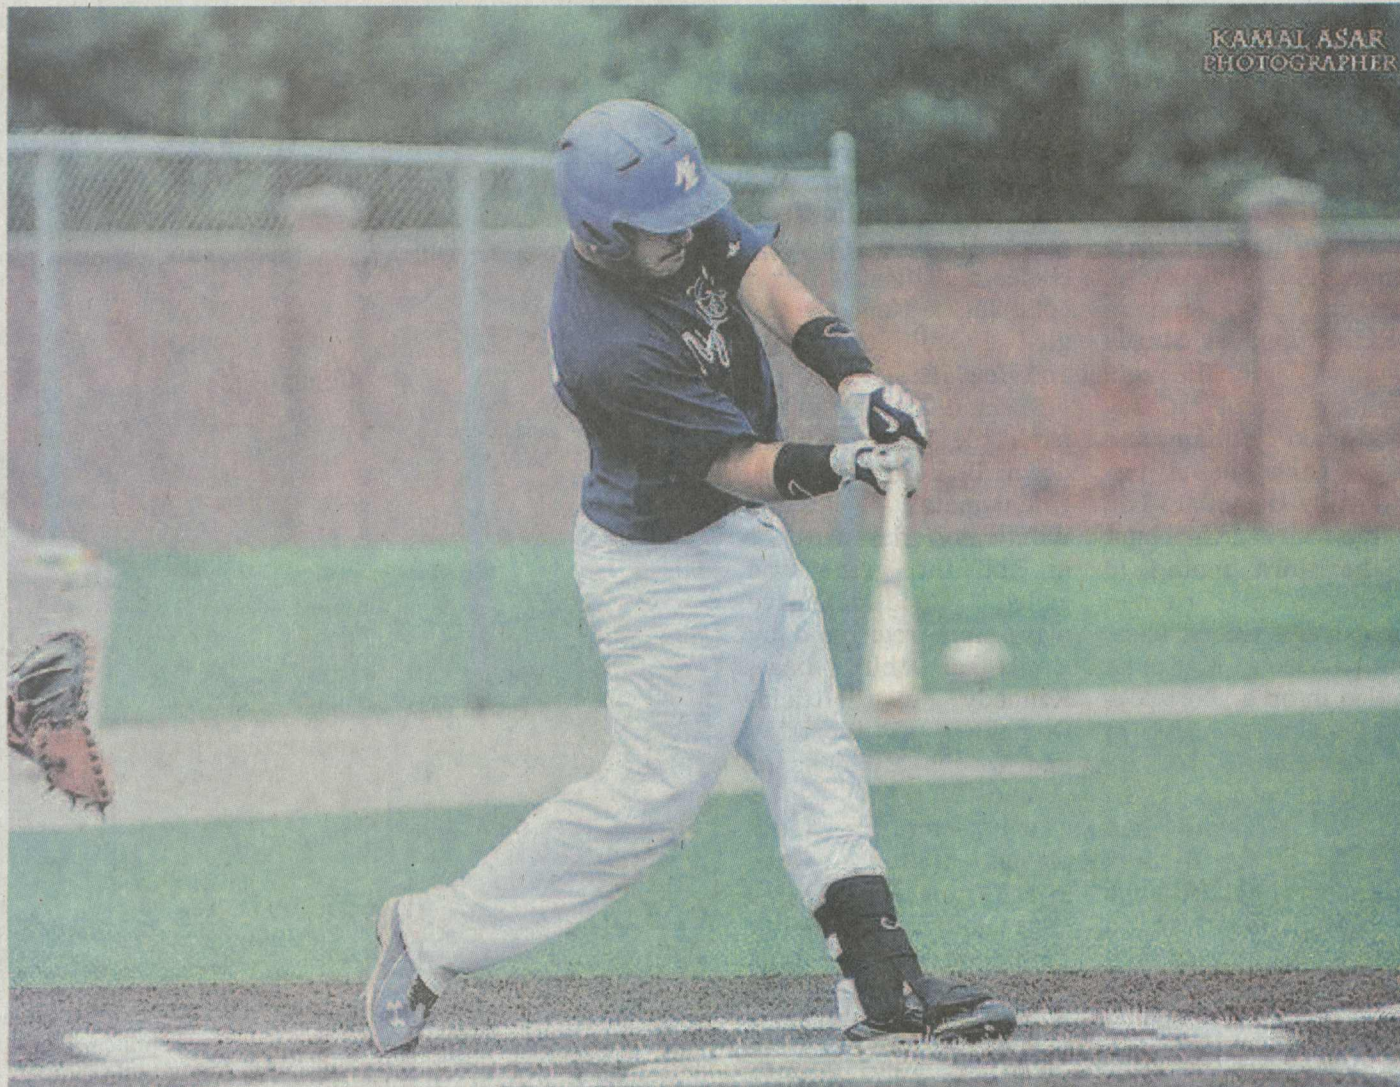

It is a day that almost every baseball player dreams about, but for Manny Cabral the dream actually came true. After a stellar season with Northern Essex Community College, including a trip to the Community College World Series, the 2010 Tewksbury High graduate fulfilled one of his childhood dreams when he was awarded a scholarship to play Division 1 baseball for Texas Southern University.

More dreams lie ahead for Cabral, like excelling on the Division 1 level and hopefully even playing professional baseball someday, but for now Cabral is savoring the moment when he took the next step in his career.

"My first reaction when they contacted me was not to get too excited because I had talked to a lot of coaches before and you never know what is going to happen," Cabral said. "But once it was official and all the paperwork actually came in it was literally a dream come true. There are no words to explain it."

It may be a dream come true, but the reality is that Cabral certainly earned his way to Texas Southern. As a catcher for Northern Essex this past season, Cabral had a sensational season, helping lead the Knights to a 22-12 record and the NEC championship.

Cabral was a Rawlings Gold Glove winner at catcher as well as the Division 3 Defensive Player of the Year. He also got the job done at the plate, smashing three home runs on the year, while 15 of his 30 RBI's came with two outs.

Texas Southern coaches took notice.

"The coaches there found out about me because of my defensive awards, and they checked out my stats and stuff and watched video of me online. Then they saw me in the College World Series in Texas and they let me know they were interested in signing me."

Now that he has joined Texas Southern, Cabral knows there will be a definite step up in competition. Instead of facing Massasoit or Mass Bay Community College, Cabral will now be preparing to catch against Grambling, Rice University and even the University of Texas.

It will be a whole new ball game, so to speak, but Cabral is confident he can make the transition.

"It's going to be a big jump in competition, but I am definitely ready to work and to get better," Cabral said. "The coaches are confident they can bring me to that level and I believe it. I think I can do it."

Texas Southern head coach Michael Robertson knows what he has in Cabral and he is excited to have a potential future star joining his team.

"We look forward to Manny joining our program and having a productive career at Texas Southern," Robertson told the TSU web site. "His experience and athletic ability will greatly enhance our team. He has strong leadership skills and a tremendous work ethic. All of those factors were critical in us making the decision to bring him into our program."

Robertson has so much confidence in Cabral, that he is already planning on putting him behind the plate to start the season.

"They have told me that the catcher position is mine to lose," Cabral said. "I am the starting catcher going into the season and that is what I wanted. I was shocked by that, but I am going to try and make the most of the opportunity."

Cabral also sees this as an opportunity to take his career to the next level. Playing Division 1 baseball accomplished one goal for Cabral, and he hopes to set his sights on the professional level at some point in the future.

"That's been a lifelong dream of mine. Really every little kid dreams of playing Division 1 baseball and then signing with the home town team," Cabral said. "It's something I have thought about since I started playing."

"The coaches told me that if I have a year like I had this past year I would have a good chance of being drafted, and that is my goal."

McDonough 2012 Hockey Night In Boston MVP and Scoring Champ

Brendan McDonough, a junior on the Division 2 state champion Wilmington High hockey team recently finished a very successful week of hockey at the 2012 Hockey Night in Boston Summer Showcase in Haverhill.

McDonough was voted a HNIB Tournament MVP as well as the Showcase Tournament Scoring Champ for the tourney which was held from July 27 through August 2. McDonough played for the newly formed Metro team coached by Frank Golden.

The team had a great tournament, but unfortunately lost in the semifinals. Also participating in the tournament were fellow Wilmington High hockey players Luke Foley and Cody McGowan. Foley played for the Metro team as well and McGowan played for the Suburban team.

Wildcats 12A Softball Wraps up Successful Season

The Wilmington Wildcats 12A summer team recently finished a strong summer in the MiddleEssex softball league at 11-3.

Jen Dovidio was the team's catalyst scoring in every game as the speedy lead off hitter. Tori Tompkins, Liz Gordon, and Dana Goulet hit solidly all year and played excellent defense. Kayla Martin, Shannon Horgan, and Natalie Medros each had a homerun this season.

Kate Ardito, Liz Freitas, Katie Newton, Emily

Clemente, and Ali Sullivan were all versatile on defense and aggressive on the base paths. And Logan MacDonald was the Wildcats number one pitcher averaging more than a strikeout an inning with a high of 18 in one game.

Mixed Results As Wilmington U-18 Softball Wraps Up Season

The Wilmington U-18 Softball team had some mixed results in the final weeks of their season, struggling in a prestigious tournament against some very strong competition, but bouncing back to split a pair of Middlesex League games on their regular season schedule.

On August 3-5 the Wildcats participated in the Woburn Tanner Pride Tournament, and while they were unable to come up with a victory against the four experienced tournament teams they faced, they did gain some valuable experience of their own by facing such quality opposition.

Hits were hard to come by throughout the tournament for the Wildcats as they were no-hit by the Mass Blackout team in the opening game of tourney. In Game Two against the Bay State Bandits Wilmington managed only three hits, with Jackie Kennedy, Kim Woods and Heather Benson reaching safely for the Wildcats.

In Game Three the Wildcats never had a chance to get their offense going as the game was cut short due to lightning and only four Wilmington players got to bat against the New England Diamond Gems. On Sunday, the Wildcats were eliminated by the Northern Devils of New York as Amanda Richards had the lone Wilmington hit.

On Monday, MiddleEssex League play resumed and Wilmington traveled to North Andover to take on the Scarlet Knights. Megan Howland and Casey MacDonald combined on the mound to scatter nine hits, striking out eight, and giving up only three earned runs while stranding eight North Andover runners on the way to an 11-7 victory. Katherine McKenna, Kim Woods and Jackie Parece led the way offensively for the Wildcats with two hits each. Parece also had a double and three RBI, while McKenna had two RBI.

Other Wilmington hits came off the bats of Jillian Williams, Jackie Kennedy, Lauren McKenna, Amanda Richards (double), Megan Howland, Michaela Ouellette, and Casey MacDonald. Williams and Woods each scored two runs. Alliy Gemellaro laid down a nice sacrifice bunt in the third inning to advance a runner. Defensively, second baseman Lauren McKenna hustled in on a short pop-up to make the catch in the fifth inning.

Things did not go as well for the Wildcats last Thursday as the Bedford Buccaneers got revenge for an earlier loss to Wilmington with an 11-4 victory over the Wildcats. It was the final game of the season for the Wildcats who finished with a record of 5-7-2. Bedford hit the ball well, with six hits and six runs in the first inning alone.

Wilmington only had one hit through the first five innings. Although they swung the bats well, Bedford defenders made the play each time. In the first inning, Wilmington loaded the bases when Amanda Richards was hit by a pitch, Lauren McKenna doubled and Alliy Gemellaro walked. With two outs, Sara Ennis drilled a line shot down the third base line only to see the Bedford third baseman make a great stab at the ball to end the inning.

The Wildcats finally got on the board in the sixth inning. Back-to-back hits by Heather Benson and Bridget Santos and a walk to Michaela Ouellette loaded the bases. A single by Casey MacDonald drove in Benson and Santos. Megan Howland reached on a fielder's choice and then with two outs, Jackie Kennedy singled home MacDonald and Howland.

Howland came on to pitch the sixth and put down Bedford in order. Unfortunately for Wilmington, darkness set in and the game was called. Good defensive plays were registered by Ennis at third base, Kennedy in leftfield, Gemellaro at shortstop and Lauren McKenna at second.

This summer's team played through some injuries to key players. Casey Murray and Sarah Flodin were lost just prior to the start of the season and Kennedy Harper's superb season ended in late July. The Wildcats were made up of Heather Benson, Sara Ennis, Sarah Flodin, Alliy Gemellaro, Kennedy Harper, Megan Howland, Jackie Kennedy, Casey MacDonald, Katherine McKenna, Lauren McKenna, Rachel Mills, Casey Murray, Michaela Ouellette, Jackie Parece, Danielle Reynolds, Amanda Richards, Bridget Santos, Jillian Williams, and Kim Woods. Coaches were Jim Howland and Bill Kennedy.

UMass Lowell Chosen No. 17 in NSCAA Division II Preseason Poll River Hawks open 2012 season Aug. 31

LOWELL (Aug. 7, 2012) - The UMass Lowell women's soccer team, fresh off arguably the best season in program history, came in at No. 17 in the NSCAA/Continental Tire Division II 2012 Preseason Rankings, released Wednesday.

UMass Lowell posted an 11-6-4 overall record in 2011, including a Northeast-10 Conference clip of 10-3-2, good for third place. The River Hawks advanced to the NCAA Tournament East Region Championship match - marking its lengthiest stay in five appearances in the NCAA - where it fell to national champion Saint Rose, 2-1.

Saint Rose (24-1-1) was selected No. 1 in the poll while Merrimack (16-4-2) was among a handful of colleges receiving votes. The University of Bridgeport (16-0-1), which UMass Lowell defeated in the second round of the East Regional, was picked No. 12 to cap the East Region schools in the poll. "It's another step forward for the program to be nationally ranked in the first poll of the season, but we are starting from scratch again," said head coach Elie Monteiro, entering his 11th year. "We had a good run in the Tournament last season and the motivation is to return to that playing level and experience that again."

UMass Lowell returns 14 veterans and six starters for the 2012 season, including NE-10 Rookie of the Year and First Team honoree Brittany Russo (Danvers, Mass.), who led the team with 10 goals and one assist. Also back is Russo's strike partner Keanna Santos (Lakeville, Mass.), a senior, who added four goals and one assist in 2011.

Sophomore goalkeeper Jane Hatzikonstantis (Tewksbury, Mass.), also cited to the NE-10 All-Rookie Team, returns alongside junior goalkeeper Jill Carlson (Lexington, Mass.), who split time between the woodwork. The two keepers combined for nine clean sheets and a 0.45 goals against average while conceding only 17 goals.

Monteiro also welcomes back senior winger Jenna Costa (Attleboro, Mass.), who chipped in one goal and six assists; as well as senior defenders Taylor Hartmann (Feeding Hills, Mass.), a NE-10 Second Team standout, and Casey Schulze (Chelmsford, Mass.), who each played a pivotal role in UMass Lowell's paltry goals against average.

UMass Lowell opens the season Friday, Aug. 31 as it hosts the River Hawk Classic. LIU Post (formerly C.W. Post) meets American International College at 4:00 while the River Hawks meet Bridgeport at 7:00.

On Sunday, Sept. 2, the field is reversed as Bridgeport meets AIC at 2:00 while UMass Lowell hosts LIU Post at 5:00.

UMass Lowell opens its NE-10 slate at home Saturday, Sept. 8 against defending NCAA Champion Saint Rose at 3:00.

Dan Vassallo tips for road race

The Wilmington Half-Marathon and 5K Road Race will be held on September 23. Dan Vassallo, one of the organizers of the race, as well as a participant, will be giving weekly tips in the weeks leading up to race to help you maximize your performance.

In the weeks leading up to the Wilmington Half-Marathon and 5K on September 23rd at 10:10 AM at the WCTV headquarters, I will be sharing some of my favorite workouts that will help you run a competitive 5K. These workouts can also help you in the half-marathon, but this year I'd like to use running a fast 5K as a focus because it requires less of a commitment in terms of consistent training and total time.

This first workout is something I ran several times over the summer when preparing for 5K races. Regardless of mileage workload and experience, this workout will help you familiarize yourself with running fast: Race pace for a 5K.

Run 1200 meters (3 laps on an outdoor track) at your desired 5K pace. After the 1200 meters, make note of how long it took you. Take the same amount of time for your rest. For example, if you ran your 1200 meters in 5:00, jog for 5 minutes at a pace at which you recover.

Repeat six to eight times. Each 1200 should be at the same pace. It should be hard. If your pace is either too easy or too hard, this workout gives you the knowledge that your 5K goal pace should be adjusted.

If you can throw a workout like this into your training twice in between now and the road races on September 23rd, you will be stronger, faster, and more aware of what you're capable of accomplishing.

Repeat Miles

The repeat mile is a staple for most distance running training programs. It is supposed to be faster than your desired race pace so it can help your speed, your endurance for running at an uncomfortable pace, and help your confidence.

Run one mile (4 laps on an outdoor track) a bit faster than your desired 5K pace. Recover by jogging half a mile. Repeat three to five times. If you fall off your desired pace toward the end, you will hopefully better understand the importance of pacing yourself on race day.

20 Minute Tempo Run

A tempo run, while better suited for longer-distance races than the 5K, is still useful because it gets your body ready to run hard for a long period of time. Your tempo run should be 40 seconds or so per mile slower than your 5K race pace.

The pace for the 20 minute tempo run should still be a harder pace than your typical easy pace. If you can hold this pace for the full 20 minutes while keeping this feeling "comfortably hard" (in other words, your stomach, legs, and lungs are all in working order), you will know that your body is capable of running a faster 5K with ease.

Sprint Workout

Many 5K runners do a lot of sprinting (repeat 200 meter sprints or 400 meter sprints) to prepare for your race, because a 5K is short enough that being able to finish faster than your competition will help you in a tactical race. I typically do not do much sprinting, but I am not a 5K runner. Here's a good workout to follow:

400 meter (1 lap) sprint at mile pace.
200 meter (1/2 lap) rest.
200 meter sprint faster than the 400.
200 meter rest
200 meter sprint faster than the 400.

200 meter rest.

Repeat all the above 3-4 times.

Strides

In other sports, they call it wind sprints. But this is a good way to keep your legs feeling fast after an easier run. When training for a 5K, I try to do about six strides at the end of my easy runs twice a week. Strides should be roughly twenty seconds long, with the first five seconds being used going from zero to your max speed, the middle ten seconds being at your max speed, and the last five seconds gliding as if you just took your foot off the gas. There's no reason to slam on the brakes; just wait for yourself to get back to a walking or standing speed. Then repeat six times. Even when not training for a 5K, I do strides at the end of my last run before a race.

Long Run

The long run is more applicable to longer-distance races, but if you can last seven or ten miles at an easy pace, you should have the aerobic strength and confidence to run a 5K at a faster pace. This run is not very difficult - all it really requires is running for a while and not getting bored. For 5K training, unless you're also training for a 10K or a longer race, you probably do not need to run more than fifteen miles. You can pull off a good 5K with consistent weekly long runs of 9-10 miles.

Local students graduate from Clark University

WORCESTER - The following area residents earned degrees from Clark University on Sunday, May 20.

Tewksbury
Brittany L. Flibotte graduated with a Master of Business Administration
Amy C. Saba graduated cum laude with a Bachelor of Arts in psychology.

Wilmington
Katelyn R. McGrath graduated summa cum laude with a Bachelor of Arts in international development and social change. McGrath is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Gryphon and Pleiades honor societies.

During the 108th Commencement exercises, Clark awarded 546 baccalaureate, 520 masters, and 26 doctoral degrees. Carol Geary Schneider, the president of the Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U), delivered the Commencement address. AAC&U is the leading national organization devoted to advancing and strengthening undergraduate liberal education.

Schneider acknowledged that some pundits have questioned whether a liberal arts education is still a smart choice in this economy. She told the graduating class that, through surveys and focus groups, she has learned that "employers place very high value on the big-picture thinking and the strong intellectual skills that a Clark University education provides."

"Employers are looking for people...who have strong communication skills, who can write well, who can speak well, who have excellent critical thinking skills, who have research skills, problem solving skills. They care a lot about diversity and they want to know they are hiring people that not only can work with, but are positioned to learn from, those whose experiences and world views are different from their own," she said. "All of these have been fundamental to your undergraduate and graduate education at Clark."

Founded in 1887 in Worcester, Massachusetts, Clark University is a small, liberal arts-based research university addressing social and human imperatives on a global scale. Nationally renowned as a college that changes lives, Clark is emerging as a transformative force in higher education today. LEEP (Liberal Education and Effective Practice) is Clark's pioneering model of education that combines a robust liberal arts curriculum with life-changing world and workplace experiences. Clark's faculty and students work across boundaries to develop solutions to contemporary challenges in the areas of psychology, geography, management, urban education, Holocaust and genocide studies, environmental studies, and international development and social change. The Clark educational experience embodies the University's motto: Challenge convention. Change our world.

Wilmington Alumni Association to Hold Cross Country Meet

The Wilmington High Alumni Association is proud to announce that they will be holding the First Annual Alumni Varsity Cross Country Meet. The meet will be held on Thursday, August 23, at 6:00 at Wilmington High School.

Any and all alumni of Wilmington High School, male or female are welcome to participate in this meet, whether or not you ran cross country in high school.

The alumni will be running along with this year's varsity cross country team and the evening should be a lot of fun for all involved, while also helping prepare our cross country team for a for a successful season.

There is no need to sign up ahead of time. Just come to the high school on August 23, and you can sign up with either 2003 Wilmington High graduate and two time Cape Ann League champion Dan Vassallo or Wilmington High head coach Tom Bradley.

Gottwald voted as board member at Stoneham Theatre

STONEHAM - "People in town are proud that Stoneham has a theatre and the excitement it brings to the downtown. It's great to see people from here and surrounding communities milling around, going to the downtown restaurants, enjoying the shows and concerts. I wanted to be involved."

Long-time Stoneham resident Priscilla Gottwald did become involved and recently joined Stoneham Theatre's Board of Directors. And she is no stranger to this kind of venture. Not only was she past president of the Reading-North Reading Chamber of Commerce, the North Reading Rotary Club, the Communications Division of the Municipal Electric Association of Massachusetts and a member of the Wilmington School and Business Partnership, but also she continues to serve on these along with several other boards.

Gottwald is the Public Relations Manager at the Reading Municipal Light Department. She has served in that position since 2001.

Gottwald got into public relations because of her interest in people and wanting to be involved in the community. Her interest in theatre developed when her daughter, Erin, was a student at Boston Ballet.

"When I would bring my daughter to the Clarendon Street studio and to ballet rehearsals at the Wang Center, I caught the excitement of theatre," Gottwald shared. "I missed the hustle and bustle of auditions, dress rehearsals, back stage activity, publicity and finally seeing the production. I am enjoying it all over again."

Soon after approaching Stoneham Theatre Board Member Beth McNelis, Gottwald found herself getting invited to dress rehearsals and events. Now that she is a Board Member, Gottwald couldn't be happier.

"I thought I had something to offer the Board in terms of public relations, networking and my experience in event planning and fund raising events. I wanted to be part of Stoneham Theatre and do what I could to spread the word to other communities and to work with the staff in accomplishing this. I hold the theatre in high esteem. Everyone at the theatre was extremely welcoming."

Because of her experience, knowledge, and positive energy, Gottwald is a great asset to the theatre. Needless to say, Stoneham Theatre couldn't be happier to have Gottwald "on-board" as well.

Priscilla and her husband Fred have lived in Stoneham since 1980 and are the parents of five grown children.

Woburn's Miliano had a front row seat to '60s political arena

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - Like almost everyone who grew up before the internet era, Woburn's Richard Miliano has kept scrapbooks of pictures, mementos and letters. But Miliano's keepsakes are a bit unique. There's more than just family photos of vacations, graduations and weddings.

Miliano was an appointee of two Massachusetts governors, and was the state-wide director for Richard Nixon's presidential campaign in 1968. He flips through photos of him with Nixon at the Kentucky Derby, with Gov. John Volpe - his political mentor - and with Bishop Fulton Sheen.

There are also photos with the likes of Carol Burnett, Steve McQueen and Red Sox legend Carl Yastrzemski, who also autographed a copy of his biography with a personal note to Miliano.

Miliano deflects any suggestion of celebrity, but he's known at least a few, and he had a front row seat to some of the most important moments of the 1968 Presidential election. And, if not for a slight twist of fate, he might have been an aide to a Vice-President, and perhaps even a President.

"I don't want anyone to get the idea that I was a bigger deal than I was," said Miliano. "I was fortunate to get to know some very good people, and things just kind of took off from there."

Miliano was working in the electronics industry when a friend named David Hodges asked him to help out with the election campaign of Gov. John Volpe, who was looking to return to the Statehouse in 1964 after being defeated two years earlier by Endicott Peabody.

Hodges introduced Miliano to Volpe's campaign manager, and Miliano offered to help. He was quickly put in charge of Volpe's election effort in Woburn.

"I thought they were just trying to get rid of me," said Miliano. "We had a campaign office on Montvale Avenue, right near the old (Daily Times Chronicle) building in Woburn Center."

Volpe defeated Peabody, and in doing so carried Woburn, a rarity for a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

"Woburn is and always was very Democrat," said Miliano. "It had been a long time since any Republican candidate for governor won in Woburn, and I'm not sure it's happened since."

Miliano's ability to deliver a staunchly Democrat city caught the eye of Volpe's chief of staff, and a few months later Volpe, a Wakefield native, named Miliano as his Appointments Secretary.

"I took a big pay cut, but it was a great opportunity," he said.

Some 50 years later, Miliano's fondness for Volpe is still evident.

"He was the most honest, forthright politician I've ever known," said Miliano. "If it wasn't for him, I never would have gotten involved into any of it in the first place."

In 1966, Volpe won re-election to the first gubernatorial 4-year term in state history, and two years later was becoming involved in the national political scene.

Miliano, who had taken a leave of absence from his post in the Statehouse when he was appointed a Special Assistant to the Nixon campaign, was part of the staff at the national election headquarters in New York.

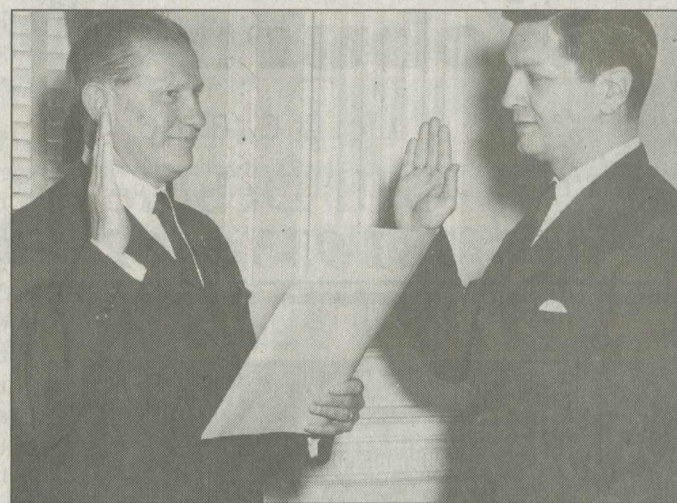

"We worked all over the country, and I had an opportunity to go to Washington D.C.," said Miliano.

As the Republicans headed to Miami for their convention, Volpe was all but assured of a spot on the ticket as Nixon's running mate, until Spiro Agnew was named the Vice-Presidential nominee at the 11th hour. Miliano has a theory why Volpe was dropped, but still isn't exactly sure what occurred.

"He (Volpe) had been told he was on the ticket," said Miliano. "I don't know what happened once we got to Miami, but when we left, he (Agnew) was the nominee."

Agnew resigned in 1973 after pleading no contest to tax

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"The Bourne Legacy" mostly entertaining

EDWARD NORTON PORTRAYS Jason Bourne in the fourth installment of the Bourne franchise. The movie is a cross between a series reboot and a sequel to the original. The results are mostly entertaining, though not as good as the original.

"THE BOURNE LEGACY" GRADE: **

Can a movie franchise be reborn without Bourne?

That's the question producers of the Jason Bourne movie franchise were left with after star Matt Damon and director Paul Greengrass (Bourne Supremacy, Bourne Ultimatum) refused to return for another installment of the highly lucrative action trilogy.

The Bourne Legacy is a cross between a series reboot and a sequel to the original franchise, with the co-writer of the first three films, Tony Gilroy, sitting in the director's chair for the first time. The results are mostly entertaining, even if this newest installment doesn't quite stand up to the original.

Running in parallel to the first three movies, The Bourne Legacy focuses on CIA agent Eric Byer's (Edward Norton) attempt to shut down the government's secret Outcome program - a chemical-based offshoot of the process that created Jason Bourne - by killing its key scientists and all the super agents it produced. He's forced to do this because Damon's Bourne has made public the agency's Treadstone program.

One of the agents marked for execution is Aaron Cross (Jeremy Renner), who survives the attempt on his life and then fakes his death. This buys him time to track down biochemist Dr. Marta Shearing (Rachel Weisz) and enlist her aid in getting him the drugs he needs to keep his abilities. But Shearing is targeted for termination as well, which sets off a globe-trotting game of cat and mouse.

Gilroy's attempts to interconnect Cross' situation with the events of the previous Bourne films is a good one, but a double-edged sword. While Jason Bourne's actions effectively drive and contextualize Legacy's complicated narrative, they also remind the viewer of how good the first three films were.

Gilroy doesn't seem to know how to capitalize on Renner's darker, tougher personality. The actor brings great energy and intensity to his role, but none of that is exploited or integrated within the story. Instead, Gilroy has him repeatedly rescue Weisz from average agents, cops and security guards.

None of these shortcomings are fatal; the movie has enough energy and velocity to keep you engaged and interested, but taken together they reveal The Bourne Legacy's flaws.

Gilroy's inability to handle fight sequences is apparent in a 20 minute motorcycle chase in the third act of the film. You can see what Gilroy's trying to do, but he doesn't have the skill to pull it off. It's a chaotic mess.

"TOTAL RECALL" GRADE: **

It's probably not fair to compare the remake of "Total Recall" to the original, but it's almost impossible not to.

The comparison actually favors the new version a bit. Directed by Len Wiseman with a lot less humor than Paul Verhoeven's 1990 original, the new film will probably play better to those whose memories hold bits of the first, who recognize certain elements - ironic in a film that centers around memories.

For those who never saw the original, the new version will likely come off like a big action movie - a little smarter than some, but really nothing special.

Colin Farrell plays the role that helped launch Arnold Schwarzenegger as an action star. Farrell can act much better Schwarzenegger, but he brings none of the same wit and one-liners to the role. There's not as much humor, good or bad, in the new "Total Recall," and what there is seems forced.

Farrell can be a funny guy (he was hilarious in "Horrible Bosses"), but not here. The idea is still based on the Philip K. Dick short story "We Can Remember It for You Wholesale". The first film took liberties with the story; this film drifts away from the first. No Mars, no aliens, no conjoined twins. The three-breasted hooker is still around, though.

This time around Douglas Quaid (Farrell) works in a factory that makes synthetic cops. His wife, Lori (Kate Beckinsale), is an EMT. It's not the life they wanted, living in a ratty apartment - the look of Wiseman's film has more in common with "Blade Runner" than the original film. Again, there is no Mars. All that's left of inhabitable Earth is the federation of Britain and "the Colony" - Australia. Workers travel back and forth by way of "The Fall," a sort of super-duper elevator that burrows through the Earth till it comes out the other side.

Rebels, led by a leader named Mathias (Bill Nighy), want to overthrow the federation, which is run by the ruthless Chancellor Cohagen (Bryan Cranston). He wants to crush the rebels, whom he has branded terrorists for their violent methods.

Quaid is troubled by dreams in which he and a woman he doesn't know are fighting the synthetic cops. He decides to visit Rekal, a company that implants memories. In Quaid's case, becoming a spy. That's the package he chooses. But the implant goes awry from the start - although he doesn't know it, Quaid is a spy. Within seconds, the synthetic cops are hunting him down.

There are plenty of twists to follow - some different from the first film (a crucial tear replaces a bead of sweat; if you saw the original that'll mean something). Quaid meets up with Melina (Jessica Biel), the woman in his dreams, who is a rebel fighter, and learns that he is not who he thinks he is - as far as he can tell.

Some of the chase scenes are fun and exciting. But the most important part of the story, the issues of identity and trust - the question of whether any of this is really happening - fall short here.

It's a loud action movie, and not much deeper than that.

"THE WATCH" GRADE: **

The idea behind the new film "The Watch" seems like a formula for a hit - a bunch of talented comic leads get together to make a high-concept, science fiction comedy hit for the studio. Instead, it falls a bit flat.

"The Watch" is a waste of a great cast. How often do you see a trio with the comedic talents of Ben Stiller, Vince Vaughn and Jonah Hill show up in the same film. Those three should have no problem overcoming the hurdle of a weak script, yet the improvising they do together seems to go to the body-part joke well a bit too often, and it quickly gets boring.

This mediocre sci-fi comedy centers around the story of a Neighborhood Watch patrol that ultimately takes on alien invaders.

It's a shame that it doesn't work, because the premise has potential, especially for anyone who was a fan of R-rated sci-fi-action-comedies in the 1980s.

"The Watch" appears to be largely improvised, particularly by Vaughn and Hill. Some of this works, but some of it really doesn't work well at all.

WHEELS OF FORTUNE (WILMINGTON)

"Thanks to the Wilmington High School Interact Club, senior citizens will have another activity to enjoy at the Buzzell Senior Center on School Street," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

The Interact Club, the largest organization at the school with 160 members and an extension of the town's Rotary Club, has celebrated the grand opening of a bocce course at the center. According to Interact advisor Jack Cushing, the students decided to pursue the court for their community service project this year because it was "a fun activity for the seniors to enjoy while also exercising."

"The idea," notes the "Crier," "first sparked when Cushing invited the senior citizens to use his own court, and it became clear they enjoyed it immensely. According to former Interact President Patrick Giroux, 18, the group embraced the idea of building a court for the seniors because it would be a great way to help them enjoy more outdoor activities."

"They can get some outdoor activity and go outside, play against their friends, and just have a good time," Giroux said ...

"The 480 foot course - 'regulation size,' as Cushing described - took about three weeks to build, the materials were paid for by the money the club had raised through various projects..."

"Cushing gives all the credit to the students for bringing the project to fruition..."

A CASE OF 'IT IS WHAT IT IS' (WOBURN)

And you think it's hard to set up play dates or coffee dates or family parties or other social events!

"City election officials are bracing for a logistical nightmare on Thursday, Sept. 6, when the state primary coincides with the first day of school for students in Woburn's public school system," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"In past election cycles, the primary was held on the third Tuesday in September, but the Secretary of State's office altered the schedule due to a conflict with Rosh Hashanah and to give election officials more time to collect absentee ballots from overseas."

"Under the old schedule, the election would have been held on Sept. 18. Then it was moved to Sept. 11, but it was decided the anniversary (of the World Trade Center attacks) would be inappropriate, and then it was moved to Sept. 4, but that was the day after Labor Day," said Woburn City Clerk William Campbell.

"The day before an election usually involves setting up the polls. Facing the prospect of paying workers on the holiday, the date was moved to Thursday."

"There were also some issues about (Sept. 6) because it's the night President Obama is giving his acceptance speech at the (Democratic National) Convention, but the governor finally stepped in and said it is what it is," said Campbell ...

ANY TIME NOW (STONEHAM)

"The Board of Selectmen

... postponed deliberations on a request from local restaurateurs to add patio seating to an expansive new Asian eatery at the Redstone Shopping Plaza," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"In a unanimous vote, the local officials accepted a request from attorney Chris Coleman, representing the owners of Asian Tulip Cuisine, to continue the matter to a future date, so he could fix errors with the submission..."

The applicants are seeking permission to create a fenced-in, 500-square-foot patio with the capacity to seat about 22 people.

"According to Coleman," notes the "Independent," "he appeared before the Planning Board last February to obtain a special permit for the outdoor dining space, but apparently that plan of record doesn't match up with the present site layout..."

"Since the attorney just learned about those objections, he sought the continuance to speak further with the safety officials..."

"About the Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper or look on line for up-to-date information about your city or town.

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY

TRIVIA: How many quarterbacks were taken in the first round of the 2011 NFL draft?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•The UMass Lowell women's soccer team, fresh off arguably the best season in program history, came in at No. 17 in the NSCAA/Continental Tire Division II 2012 Preseason Rankings, released Wednesday.

UMass Lowell posted an 11-6-4 overall record in 2011, including a Northeast-10 Conference clip of 10-3-2, good for third place. The River Hawks advanced to the NCAA Tournament East Region Championship match - marking its lengthiest stay in five appearances in the NCAAAs - where it fell to national champion Saint Rose, 2-1.

Saint Rose (24-1-1) was selected No. 1 in the poll while Merrimack (16-4-2) was among a handful of colleges receiving votes. The

by Paul Feely

University of Bridgeport (16-0-1), which UMass Lowell defeated in the second round of the East Regional, was picked No. 12 to cap the East Region schools in the poll.

"It's another step forward for the program to be nationally ranked in the first poll of the season, but we are starting from scratch again," said head coach Elie Monteiro, entering his 11th year. "We had a good run in the Tournament last season and the motivation is to return to that playing level and experience that again."

UMass Lowell returns 14 veterans and six starters for the 2012 season, including NE-10 Rookie of the Year and First Team honoree Brittany Russo (Danvers, Mass.), who led the team with 10 goals and one assist. Also back is Russo's strike partner Keanna Santos (Lakeville, Mass.), a senior, who added four goals and one assist in 2011.

(TEWKSBURY, MASS.), also cited to the NE-10 All-Rookie Team, returns alongside junior goalkeeper Jill Carlson (Lexington, Mass.), who split time between the woodwork. The two keepers combined for nine clean sheets and a 0.45 goals against average while conceding only 17 goals.

Monteiro also welcomes back senior winger Jenna Costa (Attleboro, Mass.), who chipped in one goal and six assists; as well as senior defenders Taylor Hartmann (Feeding Hills, Mass.), a NE-10 Second Team standout, and Casey Schulze (Chelmsford, Mass.), who each played a pivotal role in UMass Lowell's paltry goals against average.

UMass Lowell opens the season Friday, Aug. 31 as it hosts the River Hawk Classic. LIU Post (formerly C.W. Post) meets American International College at 4:00 while the River Hawks meet Bridgeport at 7:00.

On Sunday, Sept. 2, the field is reversed as Bridgeport meets AIC at 2:00 while UMass Lowell hosts LIU Post at 5:00.

UMass Lowell opens its NE-10 slate Saturday, Sept. 8 at home against defending NCAA Champion Saint Rose at 3:00.

•University of New Hampshire student-athletes Megan Bozek (Cortlandt Manor, N.Y.), Kellie Joyce (South Pomfret, Vt.), Casey Pohlmeier (Millersville, Md.), CARLIE TARBELL (WAKEFIELD, MASS.) and Melyssa Woods (Glens Falls N.Y.) were all selected to a regional High Performance Team and competed at the Women's National Championships at the University of Maryland.

USA Field Hockey's High Performance Training Centers identify and train potential National Team athletes through comprehensive training and skill enhancement sessions as well as premier level competitions. They allow athletes to train in regional areas close to home with some of the country's top coaches. Trials are open to enrolled collegiate athletes and post-collegiate athletes identified by USA Field Hockey.

Bozek and Tarbell played for the North High Performance Tournament Team - which encompasses Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York - while Joyce, Pohlmeier and Woods were named to the Boston WNC Team.

Bozek started all 22 games as a sophomore back for UNH in 2011 and tallied five goals and one assist for 11 points as an integral part of the offensive penalty corner unit. She led the Wildcats in defensive saves with three and was also a prominent part of the Wildcats' defensive penalty corner unit. Her 2011 accolades included Longstreth/NFHCA Northeast Region Second Team, America East All-Conference Second Team and America East All-Academic Team. Bozek was named the recipient of the UNH field hockey program's Joyce V. Hiller Scholarship.

Tarbell played in six games with a 1-0 record during her freshman year for the 'Cats. She stopped 11 of 12 shots for a 0.39 GAA and .917 save percentage; in her only career start, Tarbell made five saves in a 2-1 victory at the University of Vermont. Tarbell was the recipient of The Freshman Award at UNH's annual team banquet.

•Need some help with the trivia question? Less than six.

•The UMass Lowell Athletic Hall of Fame will induct four new members on Saturday, Sept. 29 as part of its second annual Dream of Perfect Games Celebration of Sport at the Inn & Conference Center.

Headlining the Class of 2012 is Nicole (Plante) Hunt '07, a nine-time All-American and NCAA champion in the 10,000 meters; Joanna DaLuzze '06, who led the field hockey team to the 2005 NCAA Championship; and WOBURN NATIVES JASON PAIGE '05, an All-American in soccer and track and field; and his brother MIKE PAIGE '02, a four-time All-American sprinter and standout soccer player.

The induction of the Paige brothers marks the second time a brother tandem has been inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame. The Paiges join Brandon '03 and Jonathan Curran '05, both soccer standouts who were inducted in 2008 and 2010, respectively.

Additionally, the induction of Mike Paige completes the first husband-wife tandem in the Hall. Paige's wife, Jill (Croft) Paige '02, was inducted in 2008.

Members of the class of 2012 will be honored at the Celebration of Sport ceremony beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets cost $50 per person.

Top rated cancer centers

Receiving a cancer diagnosis can be devastating. So many questions come to mind, not the least of which is a patient's chances of survival. That is why cancer patients are quite concerned about the level of care they receive. A hospital or treatment center highly rated for cancer care and dedicated doctors can make things easier for recently diagnosed patients.

Each year, U.S. News and World Report investigates cancer facilities across the United States and shares their findings based on reputation, staff and number of fatalities.

* M.D. Anderson Cancer Center: This facility, located in Houston, TX, is rated one of the best cancer hospitals in the country for all patients, but it is also highly prized for its pediatric center.

* Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center: Based in New York City, this center routinely takes on tough cases of cancer. It also houses the top pediatric cancer program in the country.

* Johns Hopkins Hospital: Located in Baltimore, MD, Johns Hopkins Hospital is well known as a top provider of cancer care, and it also ranks highly in many other medical specialties for adults.

* The Mayo Clinic: This facility is prized as one of the top teaching hospitals in the world. Located in Rochester, MN, the Mayo Clinic is also a premier hospital for receiving top cancer care.

* Dana-Farber Cancer Institute: This is an affiliate of Harvard Medical School and is located in Boston, MA.

* University of Washington Medical Center: The vast majority of surveyed patients who have received treatment at this facility have said they would recommend the hospital.

* Massachusetts General Hospital: Residents of Boston have not one but two premier cancer facilities at their disposal. Alongside Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Massachusetts General Hospital is also a top-ranked facility.

After-care options for dual-income families

In a perfect world, school and work hours would run concurrently. But the average school day begins at 9:00 a.m. and continues until 3:00 p.m., while the average work day lasts from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. As a result, parents must arrange for child care during those hours when school is out, but Mom and Dad are still at work.

The two-income family is more common than ever before. Up until the 20th century, a dual-income family was rare. Today, however, roughly 80 percent of families in North America have both parents working, and many find it is impossible to live on one income.

Dual-income families often have to make difficult choices about child care. If a mother returned to work shortly after giving birth, day care was probably arranged early on. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, in 2010, 48 percent of children ages 0 to 4 with employed mothers were primarily cared for by a relative. Twenty-four percent spent the majority of their time in a center-based arrangement. As children grow and attend elementary school, traditional day care is usually not an option and parents have to make other arrangements.

School-based care

Many schools offer programs both before and after school, many of which are reasonably priced. This helps dual-income families, but may not be practical during early-release days, during teacher planning days or holiday breaks.

Programs that help parents before school typically allow working parents to drop off their children before the parents head to work. The students are kept in the school's gym or cafeteria until the regular school day begins. The same scenario applies to after school programs. At dismissal, after-care students will return to the designated location to work on homework or engage in some activities with other after-care participants until their parents arrive to take them home.

Family and friends

Parents who prefer a different situation than school-based care frequently turn to friends or family members to bridge the gap between school and work. Students who carpool may be dropped off early at the driver's home and stay there after school until their parents get home.

In addition, many families have welcomed older relatives back into their homes in light of the struggling economy. In such instances, grandparents or aunts and uncles can look after the kids once school has ended for the day.

After-school programs

Some children are enrolled in care centers that watch children before school, bus them to school and then return in the afternoon to pick up the children again. This is one of the more costly options in child care. However, it may be more educationally structured than the care programs provided at school.

Care To S-8

How to recognize if your child has a vision problem

Parents want their kids to be as healthy as possible. Whether tailoring kids' diets to include healthier foods or encouraging their youngsters to be physically active, parents often go the extra mile with regards to the health of their children.

But as hard as parents may try, some health-related issues are difficult to avoid or prevent. For example, even the most conscientious parents might have little influence over their children's vision. Many children have a form of myopia, commonly known as nearsightedness, which progressively worsens as kids get older but eventually stabilizes when their eyes have stopped growing, typically in a young adult's early 20s. Myopia is common and treatable, but parents should still educate themselves about it so they can better respond should they suspect their child is suffering from nearsightedness.

What causes myopia?

When a person has myopia, light entering his or her eye is focused incorrectly. Nearsighted people usually have an eyeball that is slightly longer than normal from front to back, and the light rays that make up the images a nearsighted person sees focus in front of the retina instead of directly on it. The result is that objects that are far away appear blurry.

Are there indicators that a child is nearsighted?

Kids likely won't tell their parents that they are struggling to see distant objects clearly, so it's important for parents to look for indicators that a child might be struggling with myopia. Kids who are nearsighted might squint to see objects that are far away, including the television.

One of the telltale indicators is how a child behaves in the classroom. Children who tell their teacher they need to move closer to the chalkboard should be taken to the eye doctor. Parents who suspect their child might be nearsighted can talk to their child's teacher and ask if the teacher feels the child might be struggling with his or her vision. Such struggles can affect how a child performs in school.

Children who get frequent headaches might also be suffering from nearsightedness.

Doctors recommend that kids have their eyes examined at six months, three years of age and prior to entering the first grade. But even if kids have passed previous eye examinations at each of those benchmarks, it's best to take them for another exam the moment a vision problem is suspected.

Is myopia preventable?

Since it is often inherited, myopia is not preventable. However, treatment can significantly minimize its effects. Children who appear to be struggling to see distant objects clearly should be taken for an eye exam. That exam may include an eye pressure measurement; a refraction test, which is used to determine a correct prescription for eyeglasses; a retinal examination and a visual acuity test, which measures sharpness of vision at close and far distances.

When a child is diagnosed as being nearsighted, the doctor will likely prescribe eyeglasses or contact lenses. LASIK surgery can correct vision, but many surgeons are reticent to recommend such surgery until a patient's eye has fully developed, which does not occur until after childhood.

Kids don't come with instructions

Most common parenting mistakes

Install a new appliance, which comes with an instruction manual. Buy a new gadget, and there will be an operation booklet tucked into the box. But have a child, and there's no how-to guide that comes with the new baby. Parents must learn the ropes themselves with some guidance from others who have been there. Parents with good intentions make mistakes when parenting their children, and most of these mistakes are quite common.

Parents employ many strategies for raising children the right way. It is often a task of trial and error to find methods that work in certain families. When making parenting decisions, individuals may want to avoid these common pitfalls that may lead to potential problems down the line with children's behavior.

* Do as I say, not as I do. Parents are often guilty of instructing children how to do something, but not following their own advice. For example, telling children to eat a balanced meal (including those vegetables) while the parent doesn't put any on his or her plate. Children learn best by example, and they are always watching their parents' behavior. Setting a good example all of the time is important.

* Failure to be consistent. Empty threats will soon be recognized by children for what they are. If a certain punishment is mentioned in reference to poor behavior, it is important to follow through. Don't allow children to feel as though they can behave badly without facing consequences.

* Setting unrealistic expectations. This is a fast-paced world, and one in which many people are trying to keep up with the Jones'. This can cause parents to compare their children to others the same age and wonder why their kids are not yet meeting a milestone someone else may have accomplished. As a result, parents tend to get pushy and impatient with their own children. This is often the case with a toddler who is not yet ready to potty train or a teenager who has yet to a commit to a course of study at school. Parents should set realistic expectations for their children, taking time into consideration. All children mature or do things on their own schedules - and will come around in time.

* Offering too many choices. Children presented with too many options might become indecisive. Parents can keep this in mind when allowing kids to have some independence by making a few decisions but limiting the choices to a manageable amount. For example, when asking children what they may want for breakfast, only give three choices, such as: cereal, oatmeal or yogurt. They'll still feel like they are making choices, but fewer options are less likely to overwhelm kids.

* Packing the schedule. More is not necessarily better when it comes to setting a child's schedule. Too often parents fill their kids' schedules with too many activities, especially extra-curriculars. Although afterschool activities help kids make more friends and become well-rounded individuals, overdoing it can cause stress, fatigue or inability to concentrate. Children need a balance between just having fun with free play and their school and extracurricular commitments. Having something to do each and every afternoon may overwhelm some children.

* Over-praising mundane things. It's good to reinforce positive behavior with praise, but often parents heap on too much praise or reward things that don't have much merit. This may cause children to expect a pat on the back every time they do something. When parents applaud everything a child does, he or she may end up undermining the effectiveness of praise as a form of positive reinforcement.

* Nagging doesn't work. Repetitively asking for something to get done may cause children to tune out. If the child doesn't comply in a reasonable amount of time, then he or she will face some sort of punishment.

* Children and adults are not equal. In an effort to befriend their children, parents often worry about hurting feelings or having their kids mad at them. Children shouldn't be treated as small adults, and parents should remember they are parents first and foremost. Some decisions will be unpopular, but such decisions need to be made if they are in the child's best interest.

How to encourage kids to be more physically active

When today's parents reflect on their childhood, many likely recall seemingly endless days spent playing outdoors. But when today's kids become tomorrow's parents, chances are their recollections won't recall nearly as much time spent idling the days away under the sun.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, roughly 17 percent of American children and adolescents between the ages of 2 to 19 are obese. In Canada, where self-reporting data collection methods have made such statistics more difficult to quantify, the prevalence of overweight and obesity in children is also on the rise, according to the Canadian Community Health Survey.

The rise in overweight or obese children is likely a byproduct of several factors, not the least of which is that many of today's kids prefer to play a video game on the couch instead of going outdoors and being physically active. The potential ramifications of youngsters choosing a more sedentary lifestyle are dangerous, as it increases their risk for high blood pressure, high cholesterol, type 2 diabetes, respiratory ailments and joint problems, among other things. What's more, numerous studies have found that obese or overweight children are more likely to become obese or overweight adults, which highlights the importance of embracing a physically active lifestyle as a youngster.

Teens make ideal volunteers

When it comes to volunteering, perhaps no group of people is better suited to volunteering their time and services than teenagers. Teenagers typically have lots of free time and are liable to gain great perspective on life from helping others.

Teenagers applying for or hoping to one day go to college can also benefit from listing volunteer experience on their college applications. While some might suggest that's not reason enough to volunteer, it is a benefit to teens looking to stand out among a crowded pool of college applicants.

But one of the problems many teens face when deciding to volunteer is finding an opportunity that suits them. Fortunately, teenagers have many opportunities to volunteer at their disposal.

Special Olympics

Teens who love sports can combine that passion for competition with their desire to help others by volunteering with the Special Olympics (www.specialolympics.org). The Special Olympics provides year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of sports to adults and children with intellectual disabilities. Volunteering opportunities with the Special Olympics run the gamut of sports, from coaching to keeping score to being there to cheer on the athletes.

Habitat for Humanity

Teens who enjoy working with their hands might want to consider volunteering with Habitat for Humanity (www.habitat.org). Habitat for Humanity was founded on the conviction that every man, woman and child should have a decent, safe and affordable place to live. Teens can help build simple and affordable homes for low-income families.

Reading Is Fundamental

Young readers might embrace Reading Is Fundamental (www.rif.org), which works to motivate children to read by working with them, their parents and their community to make reading a fun and beneficial part of everyday life. Many high school and college students volunteer with RIF, and a volunteer might read books aloud to kids or help in any number of areas, including selecting and ordering books and organizing and participating in book events.

The Sierra Club

Eco-conscious teenagers might find the Sierra Club (www.sierraclub.org) is the right fit for them. The Sierra Club works to create a safe and healthy community in which to live and provide smart energy solutions to combat global warming. Volunteers can participate in a number of activities through their local chapters. These activities range from working with community outreach programs to partaking in Online Action Teams that promote the Sierra Club and its missions through social networking sites like Facebook and Twitter.

Additional Opportunities

The above opportunities are just a few of the hundreds of options available to teens hoping to volunteer. Kick the kids off the couch, eat healthy (NAPSA)-Studies show that over the course of a year, children spend more time watching TV than they do in school or participating in any activity other than sleeping. To break the couch habit, you can look for budget-friendly outdoor activities or healthy at-home alternatives.

A few ideas might include a day at the zoo or hiking and swimming. And because activities can work up an appetite, you can "cook up" some recipes that the whole family can create together.

Here's a nutritious recipe that's modeled after kids' favorite restaurant foods using Sanderson Farms 100 percent Natural Chicken. It has no added sodium, which is so important to health-conscious families these days:

Cheesy Chicken Quesadilla Dippers - Serves 4

6 Sanderson Farms chicken tenders tablespoon canola oil
1 1/2 teaspoons adobo seasoning or any low-sodium seasoned salt

4 8-inch flour tortillas
1 cup shredded low-fat Monterey Jack cheese

1/2 cup prepared mild tomato salsa
1 1/2 cups skim milk

8 ounces processed cheese made with 2 percent milk
Preheat gas grill or grill pan with medium heat.

Preheat oven to 300° F.

In a resealable bag, combine chicken tenders with canola oil and adobo seasoning.

Massage chicken through the bag, evenly coating the tenders with spices.

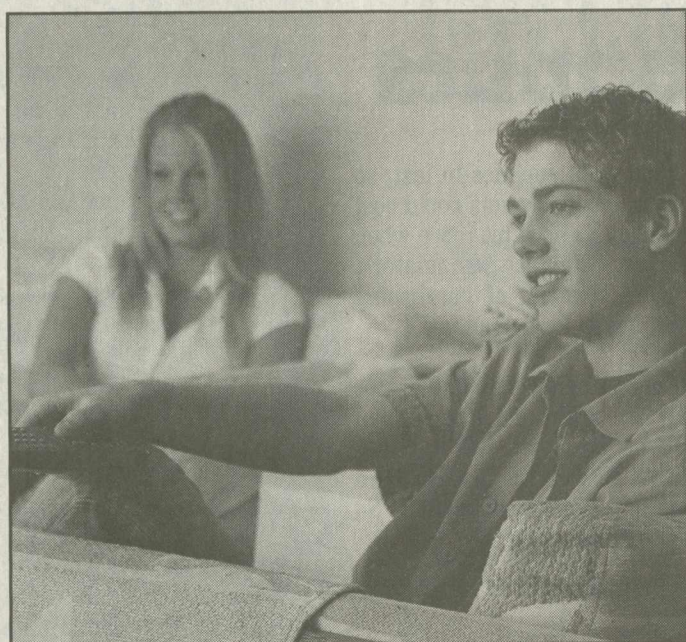

Grill the chicken over medium-high heat for 3 minutes per side or until chicken is cooked through. Chicken should be cooked to an internal temperature of 165° F.

Remove from heat and dice.

Dipping Sauce:

In a small saucepan, heat the skim milk over medium heat and whisk in the processed cheese until the mixture thickens.

Once the sauce has thickened, remove from heat. Cover the cheese sauce with plastic wrap so it touches the surface of the sauce. This keeps the sauce from forming a thin film over the top. Set aside.

Place tortillas on a metal sheet pan; layer half of each tortilla with shredded cheese, diced chicken, salsa and more shredded cheese. Fold in half. Place in preheated oven and cook for 5 minutes or until the cheese is melted and the tortillas are light golden brown. Remove from oven and cut into handheld triangle pieces. Serve with low-fat cheese dipping sauce.

For more recipes, visit www.sandersonfarmsrecipes.com.

An active day can lead to creating a dish together that the whole family can enjoy.

Active From S-6

Parents know it's not always easy to get kids to be more physically active. But the following are a few tips parents might find useful when encouraging their kids to embrace a more active lifestyle.

* Give toys that encourage physical activity. Kids love toys, and their toys will often dictate how they spend their days. Instead of buying the latest video game console, give kids toys that encourage them to be active. This can include balls, bicycles, jump ropes, or even a backyard swingset. Kids who embrace these activities at a young age are more likely to continue doing so into adolescence and adulthood.

* Reduce time spent in front of the television. Parents who can effectively minimize the amount of time their child spends in front of the television, whether reducing their time spent watching television or playing video games, will likely be more successful at instilling a love of physical activity as well. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends parents limit their child's time in front of the television to one to two hours per day, and that includes the time children spend playing video games. To further reduce kids' time watching TV, don't allow televisions in their bedrooms, as that will only make it harder to monitor just how much time kids are spending in front of their TVs.

Preparation is key to SAT success

For high school students preparing for college, the SAT is undoubtedly the most important test they will take.

"America's colleges regard the test as the most researched and respected test in the admissions process. All college-bound students should take the SAT because it increases your chances of getting into, and could even help you gain acceptance into colleges you previously would not have considered or qualified for," said Jim Montoya, Vice President of Higher Education Assessments at the College Board, a not-for-profit association that administers the test. "It opens the door to more options and opportunities."

With a seemingly endless array of test preparation information available, students can feel bombarded with options. But preparation doesn't have to be a hassle.

Montoya says students should prepare for the test as early as possible and take the preliminary SAT, known as the PSAT/NMSQT, during their sophomore or junior year. Students should also familiarize themselves with the test by taking practice tests. The College Board SAT Readiness Program offers free or low-cost materials to students preparing for the exam, including actual test questions from previous years. The program even offers a free SAT question each day for practice.

"I practiced on all the old official SATs, so when test day came, I was so comfortable, it was like second-nature to me," said Darlene Roygulgareon, a high school senior who was accepted to her first choice, The University of Maryland.

The College Board SAT

Readiness program provides test-taking suggestions like answering easier questions first and not rushing to answer every question. Since wrong answers in the multiple choice sections lower your score, a better strategy is to omit questions that you don't know the answer to.

Being mentally ready for the test is also important. A good night's sleep, knowing the best route to the test center and having all your materials ready the day before can make test day run smoothly.

While the SAT is important, students need to keep the test in perspective, which is what colleges do.

"Colleges look at your overall record - high school grades, extracurricular activities, teacher recommendations, essays and other materials you submit in the application process, so don't put too much undue pressure on yourself with the SAT," Montoya said.

Be sure to check registration dates and register on time at www.collegeboard.com.

Vision From S-5

Are there other symptoms of childhood vision problems?

There are additional symptoms of childhood vision problems that might not indicate nearsightedness, but might indicate another problem that should result in a trip to the eye doctor. For example, a child might close one eye when watching television or reading. This could be indicative that vision in one eye is poorer than the other.

Young children who struggle to color within the lines might have an issue with their hand-eye coordination.

Back to School!

Shop smart for school supplies

There are many tips out there for back-to-school shopping, but some of the smartest advice is to get organized, make a list, and stock up on the sales/bargains you can find.

Parents may find that school supplies are becoming more expensive, and that a wider array of items are requested each and every year. It's not uncommon to see tissues, antimicrobial soap, and snacks placed on school supply lists. That's because many teachers' budgets for school supplies are being cut, and parents must make up the difference.

In a 2005 Back-to-School Consumer Intentions and Actions Survey, families with school-aged children were expected to spend about $450 on school supplies each year.

To avoid breaking the bank on school supply shopping, consider the following ideas.

Separate wants from needs: Most school supplies do not go out of style, provided you buy book covers, notebooks and folders that do not play into the latest cartoon or movie craze. Buying generically styled supplies is often less expensive and will help ensure that you won't have to purchase all new supplies the next time the latest blockbuster movie comes out. Think usefulness in supplies rather than fancy and fun.

Recycle and reuse: After each school year, sort through students' supplies and weed out the ones that still have some utility and put them in a safe place. Supplies re-used are supplies that don't end up in the trash or in landfills.

Begin shopping early: Don't wait until the week before the school year starts to go shopping, because prices may be higher at this time. By starting early you can shop the sales and keep an eye out for bar.

Buy in bulk: It is often cheaper to buy in bulk, so think about doing so for the supplies you know your child will use up quickly, such as pens and pencils, paper, and paper clips. Think about getting together with other parents and negotiating with stores for a less expensive price if you buy in bulk. Set up a storage cabinet or supply cabinet in your home, like a business office would have, that can house the supplies. Send kids to school with only a few items at a time so they're not lost or traded.

Shop best price for the value: You want supplies to last, so purchasing cheaply made items when quality counts could cost more in the long run. You may want to spend a bit more when shopping for electronics, such as scientific calculators. Definitely comparison shop if you're thinking of purchasing your son or daughter a personal computer for school use.

Talk to the teachers: See if your child's school can implement a policy to send home school supply lists at the end of the school year so parents can get a head start on purchases over the summer. Some tech-savvy teachers have their own Web pages where they list supplies, reading lists and homework assignments. So be sure to check that before heading to the store

Setting up a homework station

Success in school is a marriage of many factors. Proper study habits and continued education at home are some of those factors.

"The assignment of homework, over time, serves to foster the kinds of qualities that are critical to learning - persistence, diligence, and the ability to delay gratification," says Janine Bempechat, author of "Getting Our Kids Back on Track: Educating Kids for the Future" (Jossey-Bass, 2000). "These [skills] become increasingly necessary as students graduate to higher levels of scholarship in middle school, high school, and beyond."

To facilitate the homework process and good study habits at home, create a study/homework area at home that can help students along the way. Here's what can be included.

Desk

A desk is the centerpiece of any homework area. Think about the purpose of the desk and what activities it should be able to handle. You may want the desk to be able to grow with the child. Do you envision it holding a desktop computer or a laptop at some time? Keep these factors in mind when purchasing a desk.

Size is an important component, too. A desk that is too tall or large may not fit into the space you have in your home, and it simply may not be comfortable for the student using it. He or she should be able to sit at the desk with feet flat on the floor

Care From S-5

Students who participate in sports or academic clubs may have an arrangement to stay with a teacher, coach or club administrator until their parents are home from work.

These programs vary depending on the region of the country and the particular school district. Personal finances also play a role in the type of care families can afford.

When the decision is made, there are some questions parents should ask before enrollment.

- * What is the ratio of caregivers to students?
- * What is the cost of the program?
- * How are delayed opening days and early dismissal days handled? Holidays and breaks?
- * What happens if I arrive late?
- * What activities will take place?
- * Is there ample time for homework?
- * Are caregivers teachers or volunteers?
- * Are background checks conducted?
- * Is financial assistance available?
- * What is the turn-over rate of staff?

Lice in classrooms is common

Head lice do not spread disease and aren't dangerous. However, the fact that they are highly contagious makes them a nuisance at school.

Few schools have proven immune to head lice outbreaks. Small parasites that live in the hair on the scalp, lice are sometimes found in the eyebrows. They feed upon very small amounts of blood from the scalp.

Lice can spread easily from person to person. Sharing common items, such as hats or clothing, could pass lice on to others. It is important to treat a lice outbreak very early to prevent an outbreak.

No one is immune from lice and having lice doesn't necessarily mean a child is lacking in proper hygiene. Lice simply like to lay eggs on a hair shaft close to the scalp, a perfect warm environment for the small eggs to hatch.

Although lice and their eggs are very small, they can be seen with the naked eye. Sometimes it is easier to spot the eggs, which are white, tan or gray, more easily than spotting moving lice. Once lice hatch from their eggs - usually one to two weeks after incubation - the discarded eggs will remain attached to the hair shafts. Recognizing lice gets easier as hair grows and the eggs move farther away from the scalp.

Very often parents choose to treat head lice at home with over-the-counter products that are readily available. Failing to report the presence of lice to doctors can make it difficult to track the prevalence of head lice outbreaks or the severity.

It is up to parents and school officials to quickly eradicate lice. Signs of lice include the nits (eggs) and actual lice on the scalp. There also may be red bumps and irritation.

and arms clearing the top of the desk. If placing a computer monitor on the desk, it should be eye level and a foot or more away from the person using it.

Quiet

Most students find a quiet place is conducive to studying. Therefore, the study area should be placed in a quiet part of the home. Is there a spare bedroom that can be used? What about a nook in a finished basement? The student's own bedroom may not be the best place, because he or she may be distracted by other things in the room, such as televisions, phones, or toys.

School bus safety for kindergarteners

A kindergartener's first day of school is a day to cherish. There are so many firsts to experience, from wearing a backpack for the first time to making new friends to riding on a school bus. All of these firsts can be exciting and overwhelming at the same time.

For many youngsters, school marks the first time they are away from their parents for an extended period of time. As a result, safety concerns - especially concerning transportation to and from school - is foremost on the minds of many parents. School bus safety is something that should be presented to children in terms they can understand.

Riding on a school bus is often a fun experience for kids, but the prospect of leaving Mom or Dad behind at the curb can spark mixed feelings. It is best to prepare students for the school bus a few weeks prior to the first day of school to gauge their reactions and plan accordingly.

Many school districts and transportation companies, like the North Penn School District Transportation Department in Pennsylvania, host annual events that help introduce kindergarteners-to-be to the school bus. Children are encouraged to enter the bus and learn about all of the equipment. The students also may be given a short ride around town, and safety information is typically included. If the school district where you are living does not host a special orientation day for children entering kindergarten, see if you can arrange to have a bus tour by contacting a bus company in the area.

Although safety tips may be covered at orientation, it is a good idea to reinforce lessons at home in preparation for the first day of school. Here are some important topics to go over.

* Walk to the bus using a sidewalk if there is one. If no sidewalk is present, walk on the opposite side of the street facing oncoming traffic.

- | | | | |
|--|---|---|--|
| * Wait for the bus at the designated stop. Don't wander away. | * Keep the bus aisle clear of backpacks or other items. | the bus window. | at the school to watch the boys and girls exit. This also reassures the children that they are safe riding the bus. |
| * Do not go into the street while waiting for the bus to arrive. | * Keep voices down so not to distract the driver. | | The first day of school may be full of new things, but children can acquaint themselves with school bus safety and grow accustomed to riding one each day. |
| * Do not roughhouse or run around with friends while waiting for the bus to arrive. | * Listen to the driver. | | |
| * Wait for the bus a safe distance away from the street until the bus stops and opens the door. | * Do not throw things on the bus. | * Unbuckle your seatbelt only when the bus has stopped at the school (or your stop at home) and the door is open. | |
| * Walk one-by-one onto the bus. Do not push or crowd the doorway. | * Exit the bus slowly and do not push. | | |
| * Once on the bus, quickly find a seat and sit down. | | | |
| * If there is a seatbelt, fasten it. (Children should be familiar with how to latch a seatbelt.) | * If you must cross the street when exiting the bus, do so in front of the bus so the driver can see you. | | |
| * Do not put your head, arms or anything else out of | | | Parents can go over these rules again and again. On the first day of school, some parents prefer to let their children ride the bus to school and then the parents meet the children | evasion charges, and Nixon, of course, resigned a year later under the cloud of the Watergate scandal.

"He (Volpe) would have been President," said Miliano. "If he had been on the ticket instead of Agnew, he would have become President when Nixon resigned."

Miliano, who had taken a leave of absence from his post in the Statehouse working for the Nixon campaign, was the state's executive director for the inaugural ceremony the following January. He then returned to Boston when Volpe was named Transportation Secretary by Nixon, and was appointed Secretary to the Governor by Francis Sargent, who succeeded Volpe.

"I told (Sargent) I'd give him one year, and I did," said Miliano. "I was working long hours, six or seven days a week."

In 1970, he was appointed clerk-magistrate at Somerville District Court, where he remained until he retired in 1993. Except for a few years living in Billerica and a stint in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War, he has always called Woburn home.

Though he served for a couple of years on the Woburn Redevelopment Authority, he's well out of the political arena these days, and he's no longer even a registered Republican. Miliano started as a Democrat, became an independent, then became a Republican before reverting to independent status.

Along the way, he's seen some important political events that very few have seen first-hand, and he has the pictures and mementos to show for it.

your dining room.

The second floor comes alive with a cathedral ceiling in the master bedroom, plush carpeting, a full walk in closet and full bath. Two generous sized bedrooms with good size closets offer views of the neighborhood and yard.

Leaving the house from the kitchen area, depart through glass sliding doors onto a doublewide stairway. The stairway is made of durable material, so there will not be any maintenance cost for years to come! The bottom stair meets the cobblestone patio, large enough to accommodate a grill and patio set but not overwhelming and allowing plenty of room for a game of soccer or football. The yard is generous sized with mature lawn growing and pretty patterns of shading from the abutting trees.

The bulkhead access is also located at the rear of the property. The pretty in beige vinyl siding offers an appeal that time does not diminish, only appreciates.

With room to expand in the basement, this is an ideal home for the growing family! Stonewalls define the driveway area, suitable for 2 vehicles and granite steps lead to the front door. All in all a dream that becomes reality. In Stoneham, graciously valued at $509,900. Appointments can be arranged through Fitzgerald & Associates Real Estate 978-664-4709.

This Week's Sampler: Stoneham

Brand new colonial with remarkable features

The American dream is usually defined as simply "Home Ownership"this home takes that desire one step further. Life is good. A tree lined neighborhood street with one of the nicest schools Stoneham has to offer. That's Right, The Robin Hood School is just a short walk away.

Imagine a life where for the next many years there's not a need to paint, or remodel, where "life" actually begins at the end of the day. Come on home to 10 Unicorn Ave. in Stoneham. A brand new colonial with remarkable features. Beautiful, gleaming hardwood floors welcome visitors through the entry and a black tiled fireplace with a crisp white mantle accents the family room wall separated by round columns leading into the dining area.

The kitchen will be a pleasure for the first homeowner to prepare a sumptuous meal with granite counters, a five-burner range, dishwasher and no shortage of cabinetry! Living up to today's standards includes an artsy sink in the half bath and laundry room.

Attention to detail can be viewed through the well-placed moldings in the dining room with wainscoting and crown moldings. A simple elegant chandelier lights
